Student Life

Realization of School Year Dawns Early For SHSers

Many Sumter High students saw the fall term ahead of them slowly taking shape as each summer day was rapidly whittled away. Cheerleaders, football players, band members, and publication staffers cast off their beach towels and hours of lolling in the sun, and turned their thoughts and energies towards workouts, tryouts, drills, and planning sessions long before school bells began ringing. Dispersed throughout the Carolinas in various camps and workshops, active SHSers got a head start in preparing for the long, nine-month stretch that lay before them.

School's Daily Routines Replace Summer's Vagrant Freedoms

On August 28, Sumter High swung open its doors to 2300. To the delight of some, and the dismay of many, the long, luxurious days of summer were over, and books and vacant classrooms beckoned like an old crooked finger to empty minds.

It wasn't long however, before students grasped the idea that school had really begun — and reacted accordingly. The long-forgotten bumpy bus rides, the struggles for a parking place, the noisy lunch lines, the library passes, and the pop quizzes were all made familiar again and became incorporated into each student's individual pattern of daily routines.

(1) First period fire drills, few and far between, are always a welcome interruption. (2) Robert Meyers gulps down his midday meal with something new this year, chocolate milk. (3) With her pass in one hand, and student I.D. in the other, Susan Moczydlowski makes library work proceed a little more smoothly for Bobbie Jean Wells and Debra Smith.

Classes Take Shape After Chaos of First Few Weeks

Just as the summer-worn landscape assumed a fresh new facade when the cool autumn days approached, so life did at Sumter High. The adjustment period passed, with its confused, computerized schedules and lost students, and SHSers found themselves completely immersed in a flood of textbooks. The void spaces began rapidly filling with facts and figures, and the creaky, old memory machine was oiled and rehailed for use in the year ahead.

(2) Paul Greene chisels the initial cuts from a block of wood that will be transformed into an intricate African carving.

Students Welcome New Academic Changes

With each passing class period, the halls of SHS grew quieter and quieter, a strange phenomena that could only be explained by a handful of enterprising students and energetic teachers. They had traded in their extra hour of sleep each morning to attend one of the newly — established seven-thirty classes. Their "sacrifice" reaped benefits, however, because some students were dismissed as early as eleven-thirty.

There was a host of changes and additions in the actual selection of courses. Nine-week science courses were made available to students through the mini-course system, and several full year courses were introduced. The most noticeable change though, was the change in the classroom atmosphere. With the new batch of young teachers, came young ideas and better student-teacher relationships.

Fourteen Seniors Achieve Title Of "Who's Who at Sumter High"

Distinquishing themselves as future leaders, fourteen seniors were selected to Who's Who at Sumter High School.

Who's Who was established to recognize outstanding seniors who had excelled in academic studies and had taken an active part in extra-curricular activities throughout their high school years. The student council president and publication editors were automatically considered.

Opposite Page: (1) Beth Allen, (2) Patricia Barnes, (3) Terry Brand, (4) Win Burnett, (5) Will Bynum, (6) Trish Catington, (7) Don Cooley: This Page: (1) Alan Feldsott, (2) Milton Grishom, (3) Paula Lareau, (4) Don Mazursky, (5) Bennie Solomon, (6) Cheryl Thompson, (7) Shebra Worthery.

Seniors Collect Scholarships, Special Awards

After four years of constant scholastic application and involvement in student leadership, seniors seeking scholarships, special awards, and honor positions were amply awarded. While collecting letters of recommendations and resumes of extra-curricular activities, composing essays for judging, and filling out a never ceasing flow of applications, scholarship hopefuls kept their fingers crossed and their competitive spirit high.

"King Teens", sponsored by Wofford College, Carolina Scholars, Furman Scholars, and NCTE finalists, all nominated prior to second semester, anxiously awaited each college's final decision of scholarship recipients announced in late spring.

Football Adds Another Dimension To School Life

School was not all books, tests, and homework. The 1972-73 football season was kicked off with a walloping 54-yard streak to the Sumter goal.

The exciting, well-coached Gamecocks kept Friday night football fans on the edge of their seats. Whether in the huddle, on the bench, or in the cheering section, football offered a much needed escape from a week of work.

(1) Kevin Ireland's long end-around run . . . a familiar sight to SHS football fans. (2) Coach Geddings maps second half strategy, while quarterback Steve Kirkland quenches his thirst. (3) During a crucial moment in the game, Coach Brooks listens intently for instructions from "upstairs".

Cookout Rouses Pre-game Enthusiasm

Determined to boost sagging spirits during the mid-season slump, the faculty and cheerleaders hosted a cookout for the varsity football players and coaches.

Armed with aprons and spatulas, Chefs Matthews and Gamble proved to be efficient hamburger flippers as they took command of the grill.

The hungry Gamecocks consumed hamburgers and hot dogs by the dozens, along with cake and soft-drinks served by the cheerleaders.

"Half time" entertainment was furnished by daring faculty members who exhibited their amazing acrobatic abilities on the monkey bars.

(1) Mr. Matthews and Mr. Gamble take time out from grill duties to fix themselves a hamburger. (2) Undaunted, Miss Duffy executes an unusual stunt on the monkey bars before Miss Boose and a disbelieving Albert Prince. (3) As Coach Noonan delivers his "pep-talk", expressions ranging from bewilderment to amusement crop up on Gamecock faces. (4) David Gamble, Wilbert Heriot, Greg Alford, Oscar Potts, and Gilbert Mickel take it easy after a hearty meal.

Cagers Give Fans A Run For The Money

After retiring the pigskin for another season, the action did not cease. Roundballs and a whole new athlete took control of the boards. Sporting flashy light blue-and-gold "Marquette" uniforms, Coach Mitchell and his cagers ripped the nets and took avid basketball followers all the way to "Lower State".

Winter Sports Gain Increasing Popularity

Those whose athletic interests leaned more toward pins, corner kicks, and endurance running than to punt returns and tip-offs saw plenty of action with the SHS mat men, booters, and harriers. Soccer and Wrestling drew more and more followers with each passing match-up, but Cross Country remained the lonely, individual race against time.

Jennie Gardner Reigns as '72-'73 Gamecock Queen

The second annual Gamecock Week was highlighted with the crowning of Jennie Gardner as Gamecock Queen. The coronation and revealing of class beauties took place during halftime of the Sumter — Conway football contest, Oct. 21.

Class Floats, Spirit Chains Herald Gamecock Week — Oct. 14-21.

Apprehension and fervor built simultaneously as the week preceding the Conway football game saw students busily engaged in nominating queens and class beauties, buying paper links for spirit chains, decorating doors, trimming floats, and discovering the no-so-secret float hideouts of their fellow classmates.

The bubble of enthusiasm burst with noisy excitement on Friday, with pep competition at the fairgrounds. Class floats, abound with tissue paper and chicken wire, led the colorful caravan of spirited students down Liberty Street to the eagerly awaited destination where floats, spirit chains, and class pep would be judged.

Juniors and Sophs Nab Pep Awards

Juniors claimed honors in the float division with their theme "Fry Em". Clad in aprons and chef's hats, bearing spatulas and spoons, and banging pots and pans, juniors stirred up a tremendous amount of pep and energy.

Following last year's tradition, the seldom-seen sophomores proudly unfurled their winning spirit chain and united lung power and competitive drive to secure the title as pep competition "champs".

Following the fairground festivities, an exhausted, hoarse, and dusty crew of SHS'ers piled back into their painted and beribboned vehicles to prepare for the game and the big dance that followed.

Opposite Page: (1) Woody McLeod and his junior classmates spend many free hours pushing bits of colored tissues through yards of chicken wire in order to complete their prize-winning float. WDXY Disc Jockeys Lead Seniors In Raising $14,300

Placards, water pistols, and kazoos marked the opening of the senior magazine campaign in October. Senior homerooms were divided into two teams, "Charlie's Chargers" and "Powell's Pistols" led by fun-loving WDXY disc jockeys, Charlie Jay and Bob Powell. "Chargers" and "Pistols" were herded into the auditorium prior to the campaign to receive the magazine sales pitch and to take part in boisterous, spirit-raising, team rivalry.

After four weeks of pacing the Summer community and peddling popular magazine subscriptions, the senior class raised approximately $14,300. "Charlie's Chargers" outdistanced "Powell's Pistols" in the stretch to claim high sales honors, but Will Bynum topped all seniors and won the grand prize of $100 by selling almost $600 worth of subscriptions.

The profit earned from the '72-'73 magazine sale was used to finance the school's yearbook, newspaper, and literary magazine.

(1) Gleeful "Pistols" lead their team in a victory yell. (2) Charlie Jay challenges his "chargers" to establish a new record in magazine sales. (3) Brian Borry devotes his free time tabulating subscription sales. (4) The door to door solicitation tired many seniors, but Connie Shorter, Greg Alford, Liz Woods, and Theresa Heinmiller find that the endless money counting is a bit tedious, too.

Activity Periods Offer Retreat From Classroom Grind

Every other Friday, students eased the weeks' tensions by attending club meetings, watching old "Charlie Chaplin" movies and cartoons, playing card games, and catching up on the local gossip by the way of Activity Period.

The amiable atmosphere and variety of scheduled activities satisfied the mood and interest of every student in one way or another.

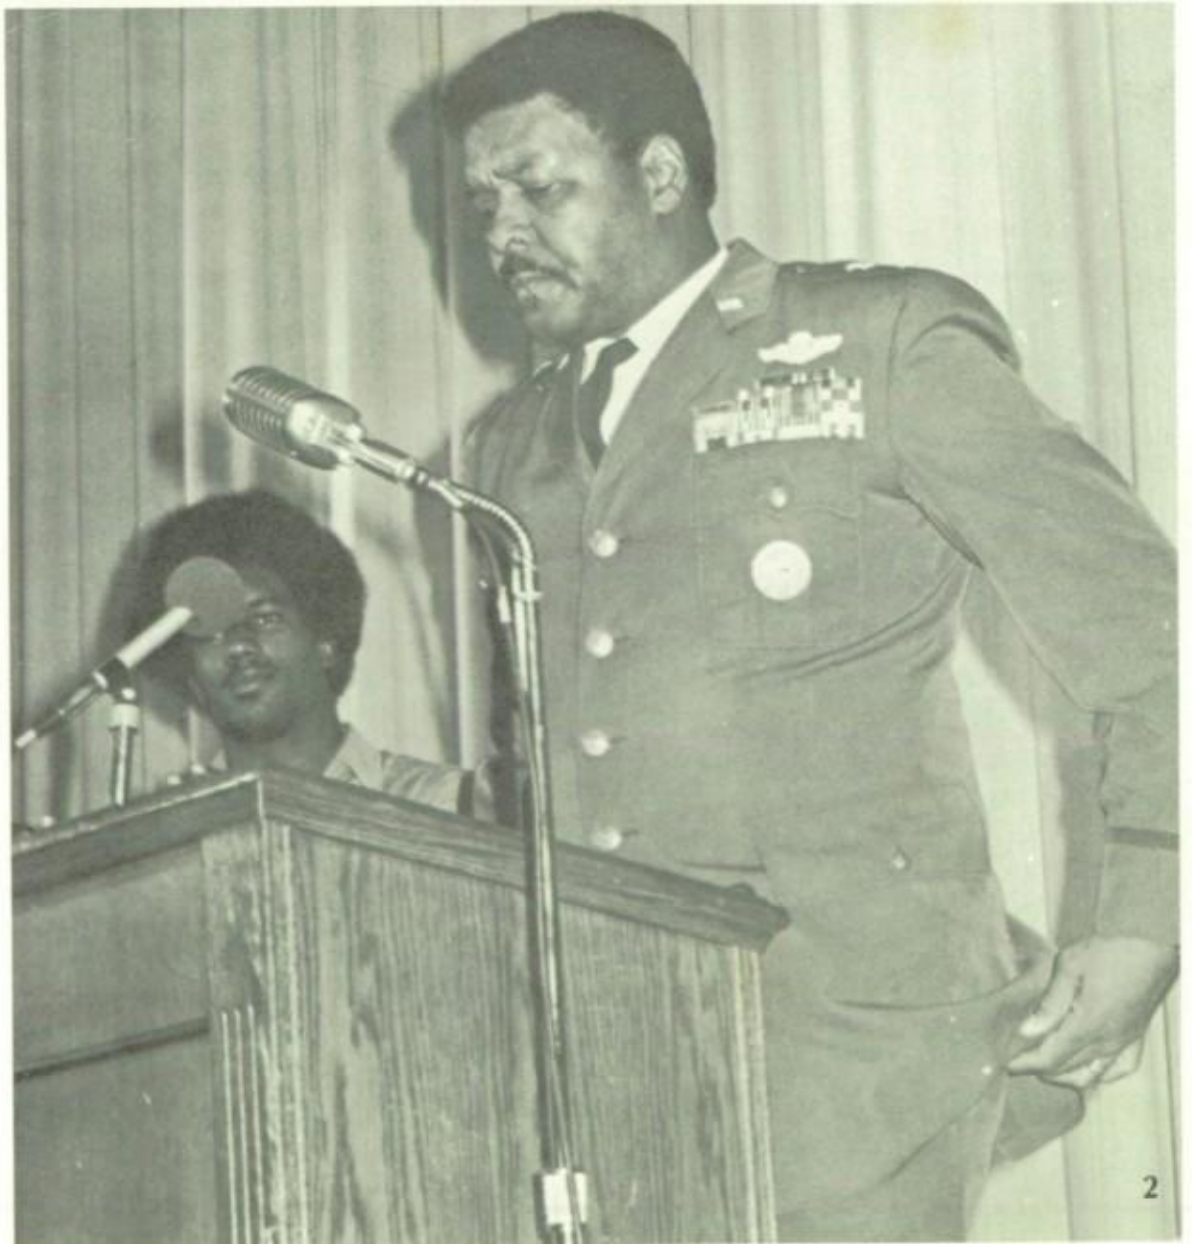

(1) Barbara Taylor learns a new pastime during an Activity Period crocheting session. (2) Relaxing, playing "spades", and sharing a little gossip are Linda English, Thelma Linton, Julia Richardson, and Charlie Mae Mack. (3) Mellow music is Barry Phillips' escape from the day's worries. (4) George Williams, James Galloway, James Richburg, Ferris Williams and James Green find Activity Period a perfect time for "jamming".

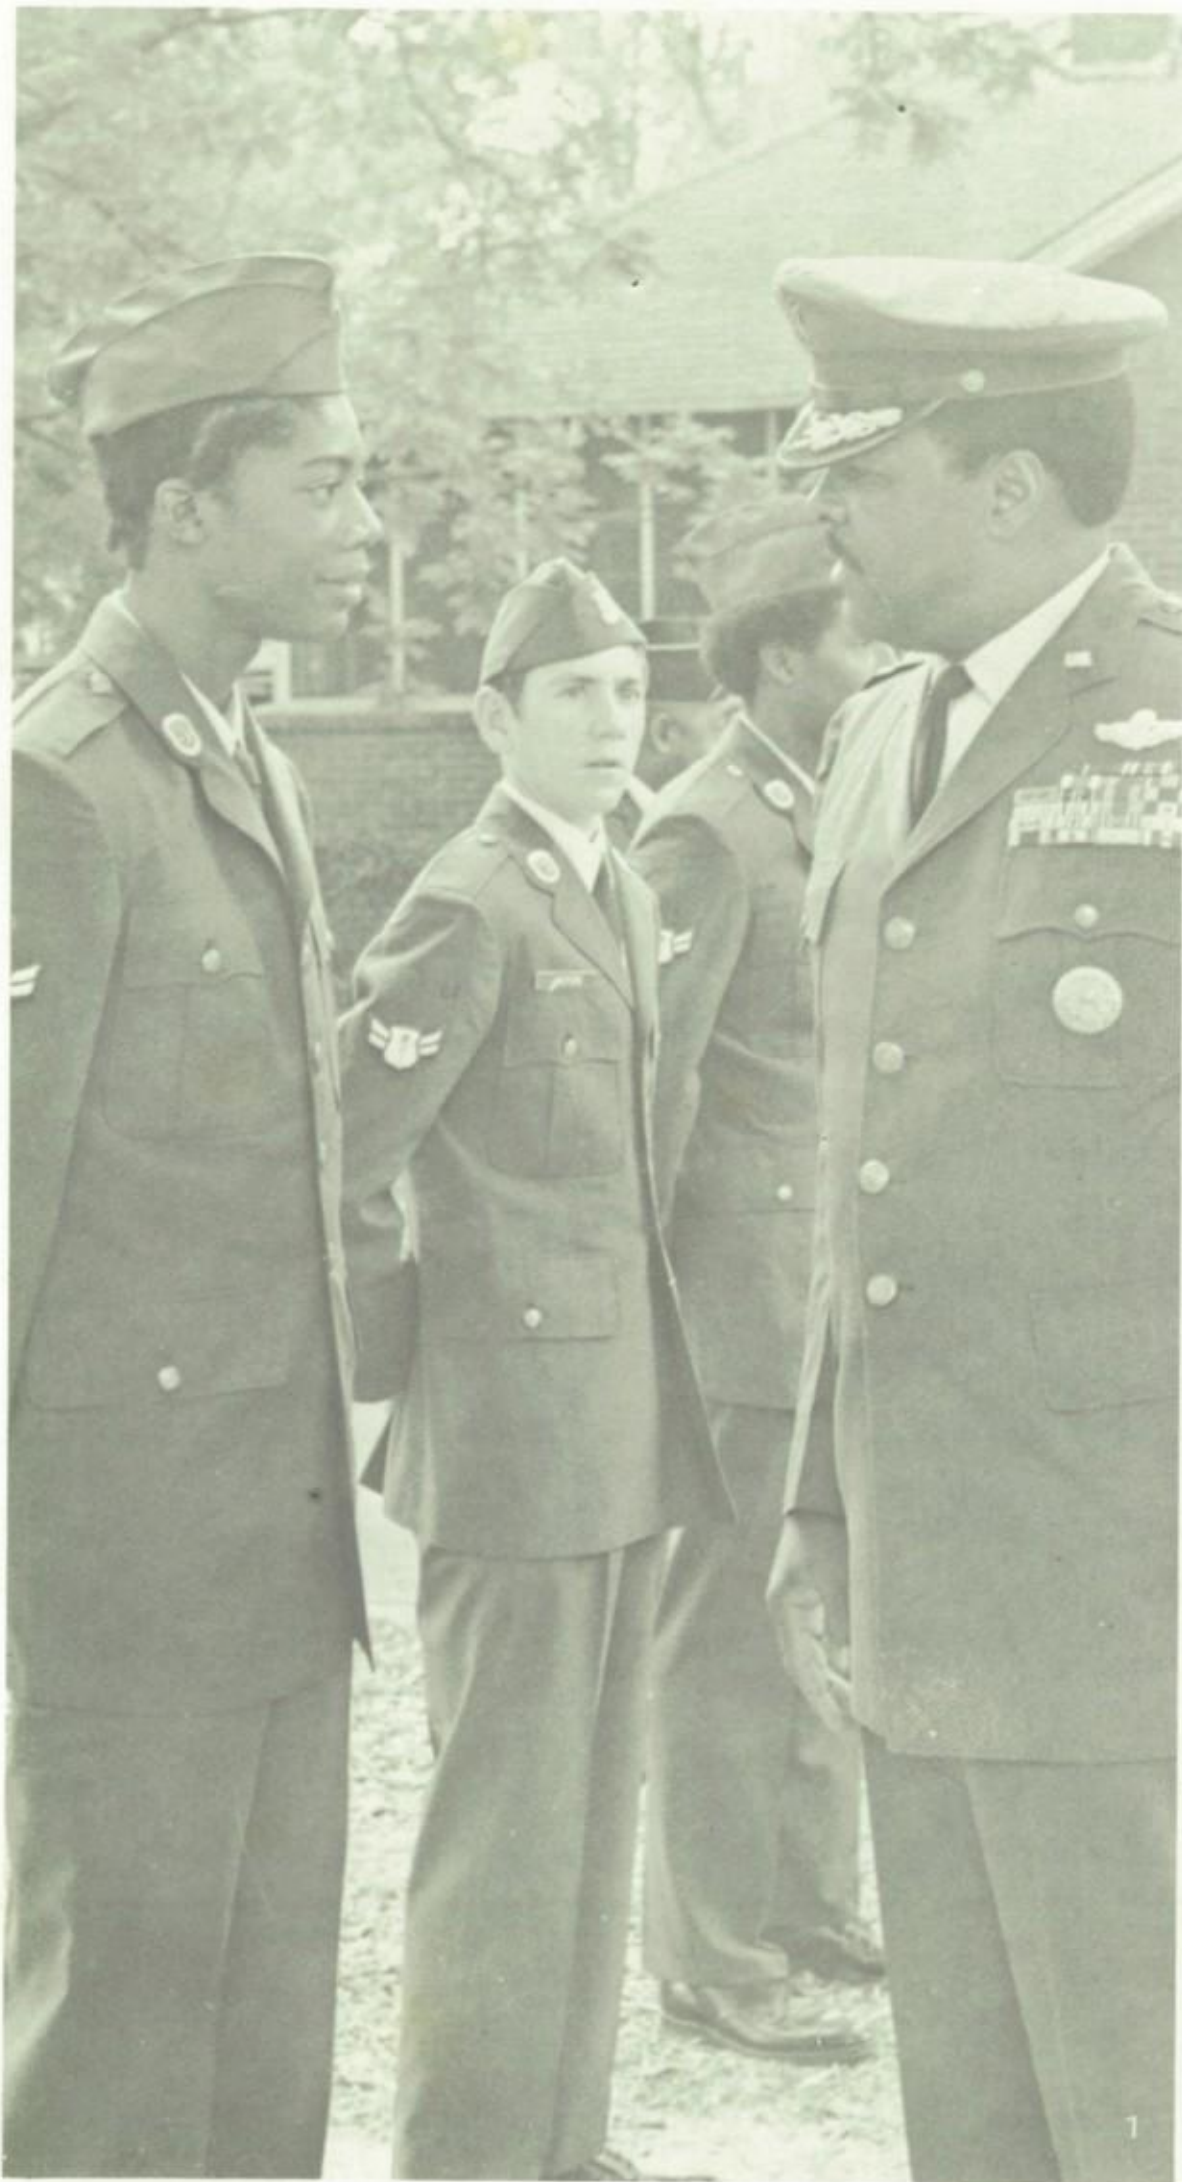

Maj. Gen. James Revives Waning Patriotism

On Tuesday, November 11, the auditorium filled with students expecting another monotonous, uninspired Veteran's Day speech. However, that was not the case, for Major General "Chappy" James, Deputy Assistant to the Secretary of Defense, delivered a speech that made even the most indifferent sit up, take notice, and mark his inspiring words for days to come.

Through the stirring account of his personal triumphs and defeats, Major General James planted new seeds of patriotism and revived new hopes for the American Dream.

Assembly Involves Students; Heralds Coming of Christmas

Christmas merriment replaced mid-term exam tensions when various clubs heralded the approach of the Yuletide season with a two hour program of song, dance, and celebrations around the world.

The glittering, ornamented curtains parted and revealed a portrayal of the Jewish celebration of Hanukkah, with candle lighting and hymns accompanied by the guitar. The Spanish and French clubs prepared gay, mirth-provoking skits of family festivities and carol singing in foreign lands. The Black Heritage club captivated the audience with their recreation of the Nativity scene, lilting music, and the performance of a graceful African ceremonial dance.

The Christmas spirit of SHS soared as the chorus climaxed the program with their grand finale; the interpretation of the age-old, "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

New Year Brings Ice, Snow . . . Snow . . . And More Snow

Early Monday morning, January 8, Sumter High students greeted four days of glorious leisure, for Sumter experienced the first winter storm of the season. Tests, important papers, and schoolwork were put off for two consecutive days because of hazardous driving conditions.

On Wednesday, however, the sun blinked through the snow filled clouds, and school resumed. The athletic field and courtyard served as an excellent ice-skating rink, and students, donning heavy coats and mittens, used them to full advantage.

"Vacations" came as a surprise on Thursday and Friday, when the second predicted ice-storm by-passed South Carolina completely. Teachers took the Wednesday afternoon announcement of "no school" seriously and fled to their hometowns and other vacation spots.

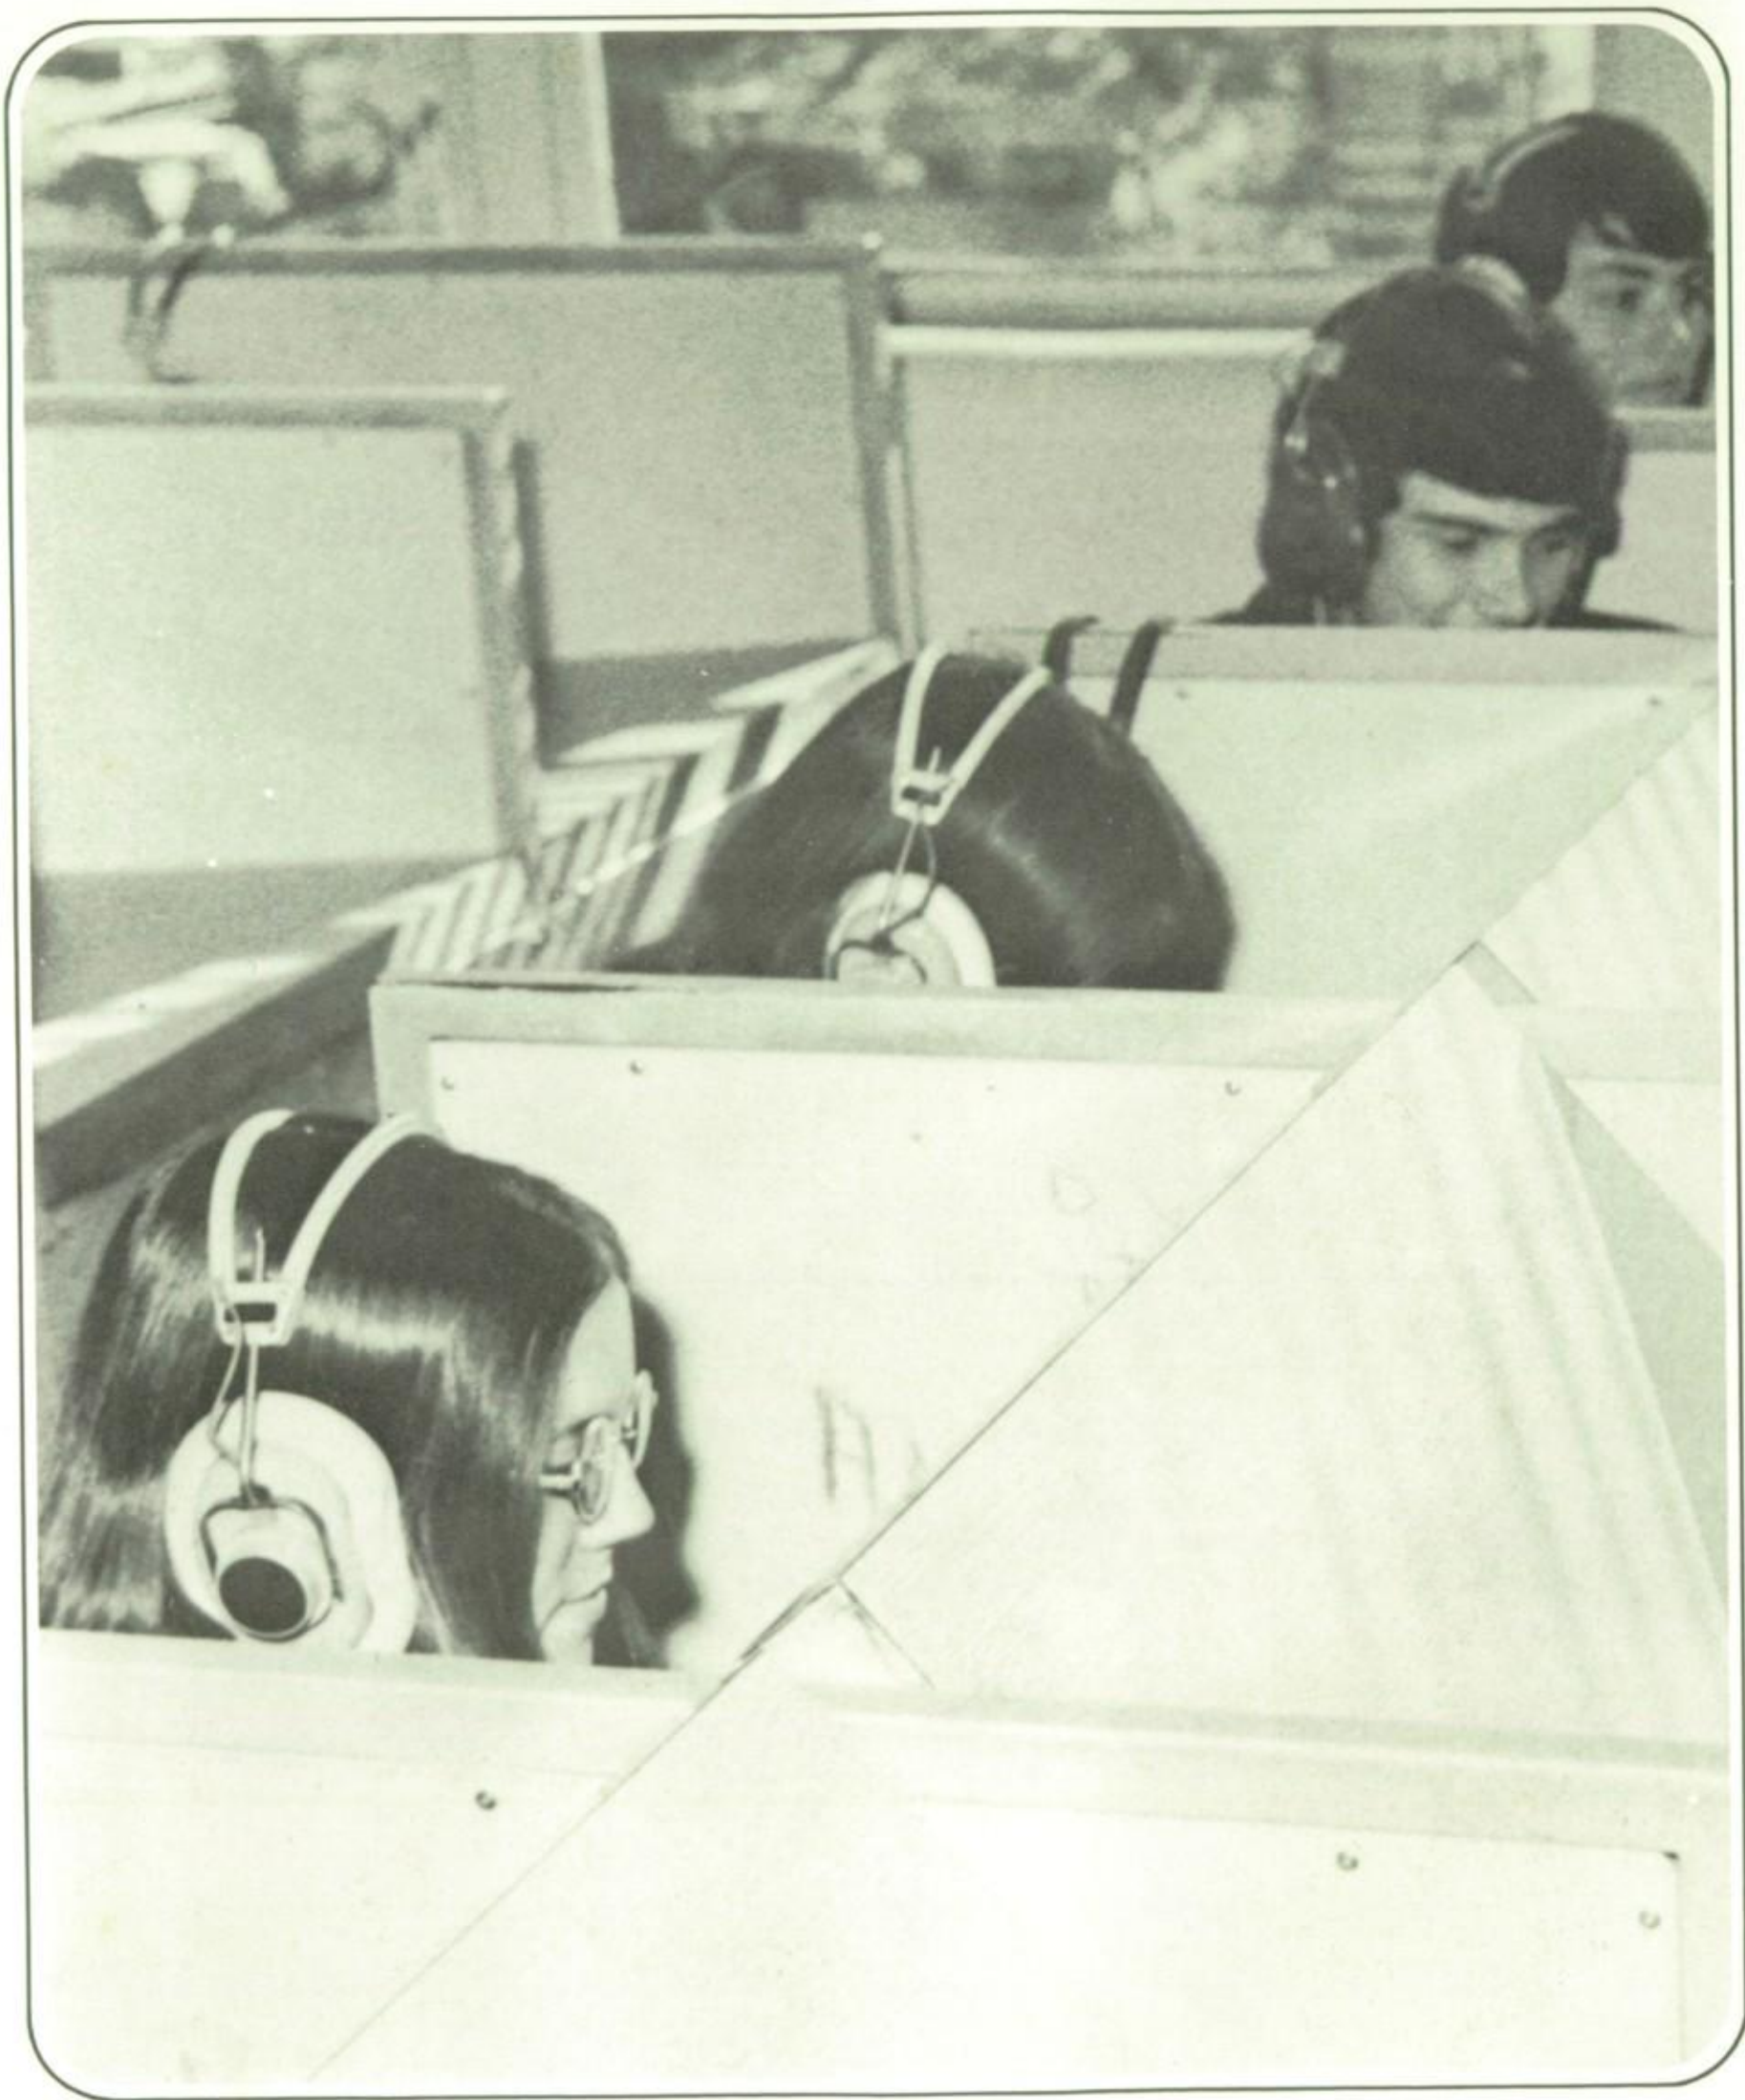

On Friday, February 9, history repeated itself when twenty-three inches of snow buried Sumter.

Counselors Listen to Student Requests

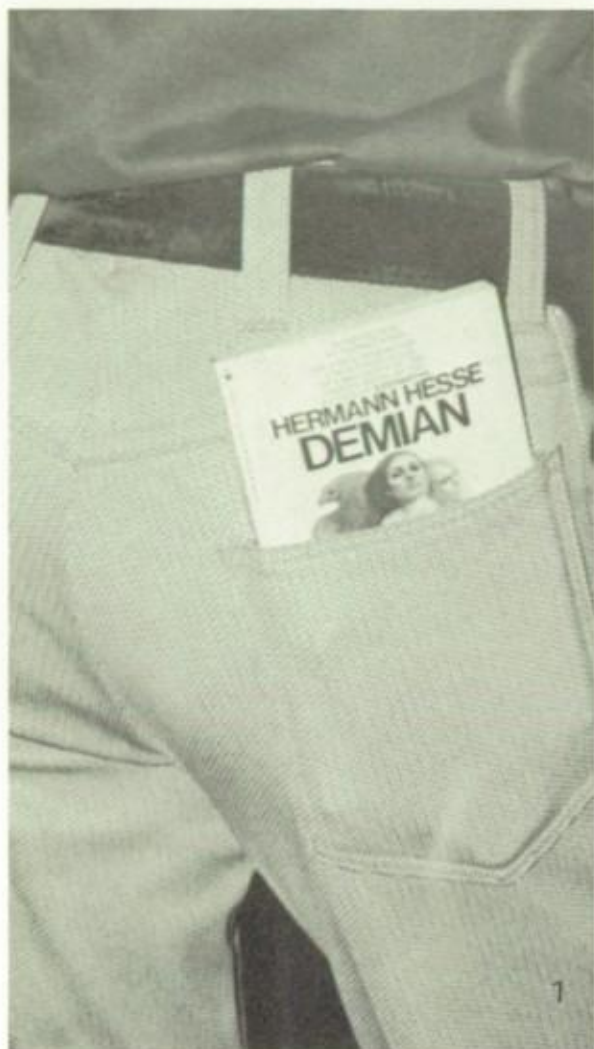

Adjusting schedules and satisfying student requests filled the hours of a counselor's day. Nevertheless, they still found time to answer questions concerning college requirements or supply career information.

When students called a halt to studies for a few minutes of unwinding, the library was waiting with enticing books and current magazines on all popular topics. Newspapers were available for students who wanted to stay in-the-know about important issues.

As an added attraction this year, a Reference Room was opened at the Haynsworth Street campus. Adjoining the main room of the library, the Reference Room gave scholars a convenient place to work on research papers. Microfilm and back issues of magazines aided students in their search for specific information.

The Literary World Comes to Life for English Students

Amid colorful original drawings, sculptures, collages, and mobiles, a six-foot cyclops, a miniature Stonehenge and a detailed replica of Shakespeare's Globe Theater greeted visitors to the English Department.

Classrooms burst with the vivid expositions as a result of imaginative interpretations of science-fiction, Greek and Roman tragedies, Shakespearean works, and modern novels and poetry.

Although stimulating creativity and self-expression, English teachers still stressed correct grammar and writing forms.

(1) During a course of study on Hesse, English honors students discover a strange growth on their hip pocket. (2) Homer's Odyssey provides the inspiration for Randy Stokes, Cyclops creation. (3) Beth Allen, Geoffrey Alsbrooks, and Bobby Bishop as Petruchio, reenact a lively scene from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew". (4) With inborn acting talent, Charles Bradley gives a provocative portrayal of Kate. (5) A showcase of projects brightens Miss Davis' English III class.

Students Express Untapped Creativity Under Visiting Poet

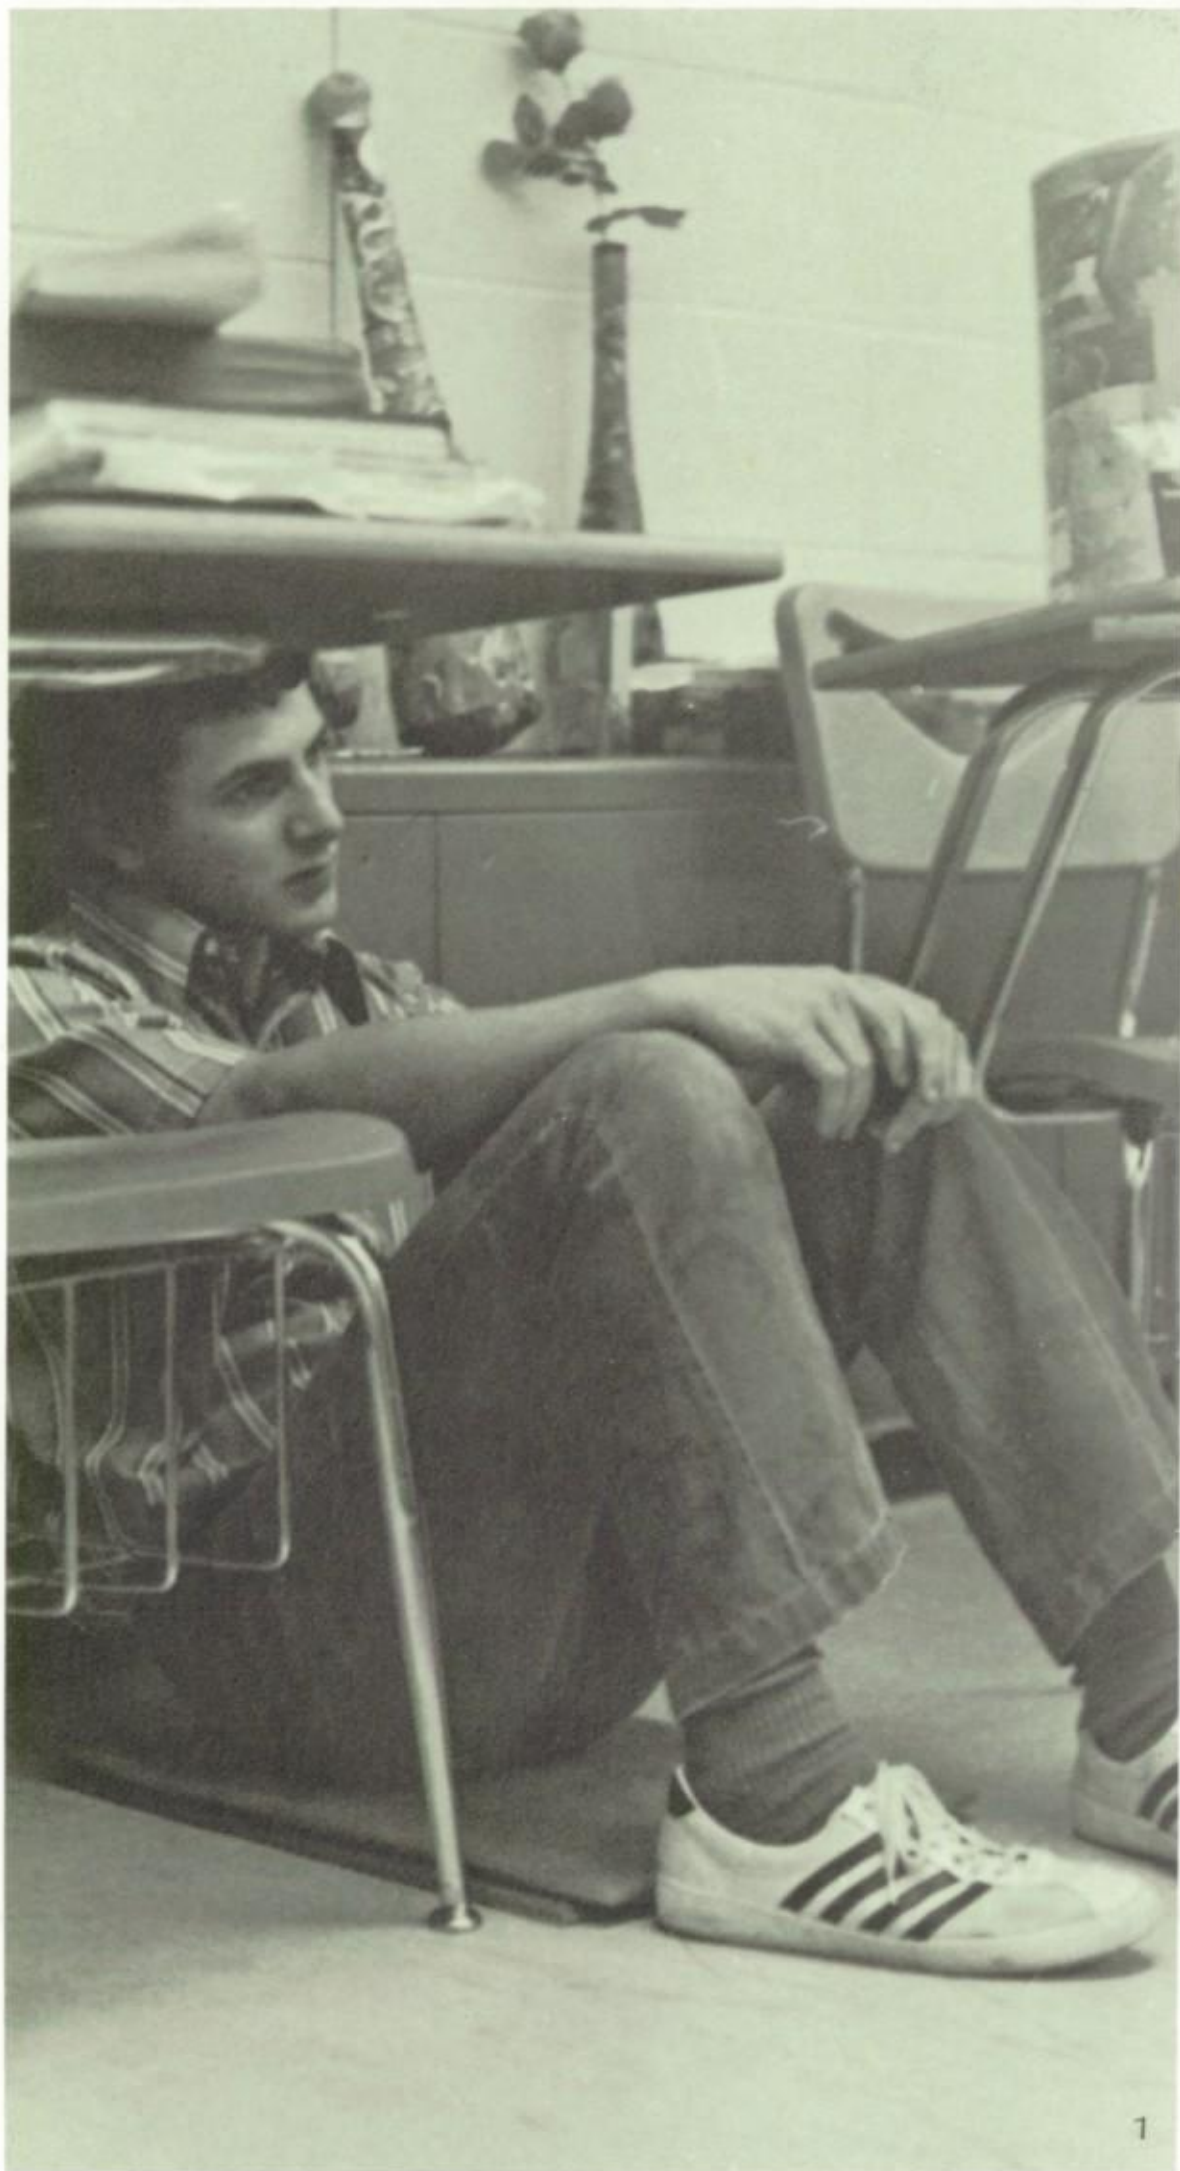

Pat Henley, a visiting professional poet sponsored by the South Carolina Arts Commission, brought her unique method of teaching to honors English classes for several days in October and February.

Mrs. Henley was able to draw poetic expressions from deep within students by creating a relaxing, mystical atmosphere with Oriental rugs, incense, and the lilting strains of Ravi Shankar, Nikki Giovanni, and Joan Baez.

A wife and mother of a small son, Mrs. Henley began writing seriously several years ago. Her first book, Love-words, was published in 1969.

Under her association with the S. C. Arts Commission, Mrs. Henley visited schools throughout the state acquainting students with modern poets and their poetry.

Language Students Escape the Drudgery of "Book Learning"

Bewilderment and amusement were common occurrences among foreign language teachers as their students rattled off perplexing foreign phrases not usually found in textbooks. Escaping from the dull routine of translation and recitation, French, Spanish, and Latin students grasped new concepts of foreign languages through impromptu class discussions, humorous, mistake-laden skits, and cultural songs and games.

Spanish students borrowed the Home Ec. cooking facilities for a couple of days to prepare a complete meal fit for a Spanish gourmet.

Attending the entertaining French play, "L Médecin Molgré Lui", in Columbia highlighted the year for French scholars.

The Foreign Language Department prided itself in producing three winners in the state-wide Declamation Contest held at Clemson University.

Innovative Mini-Course System Adds Variety to Science Department

Variation was the key word in Science for 1972-73. The mini-course method of instruction, already proven effective in the English Department, was the new approach undertaken by the Science Department in an effort to reach more students with a variety of science courses.

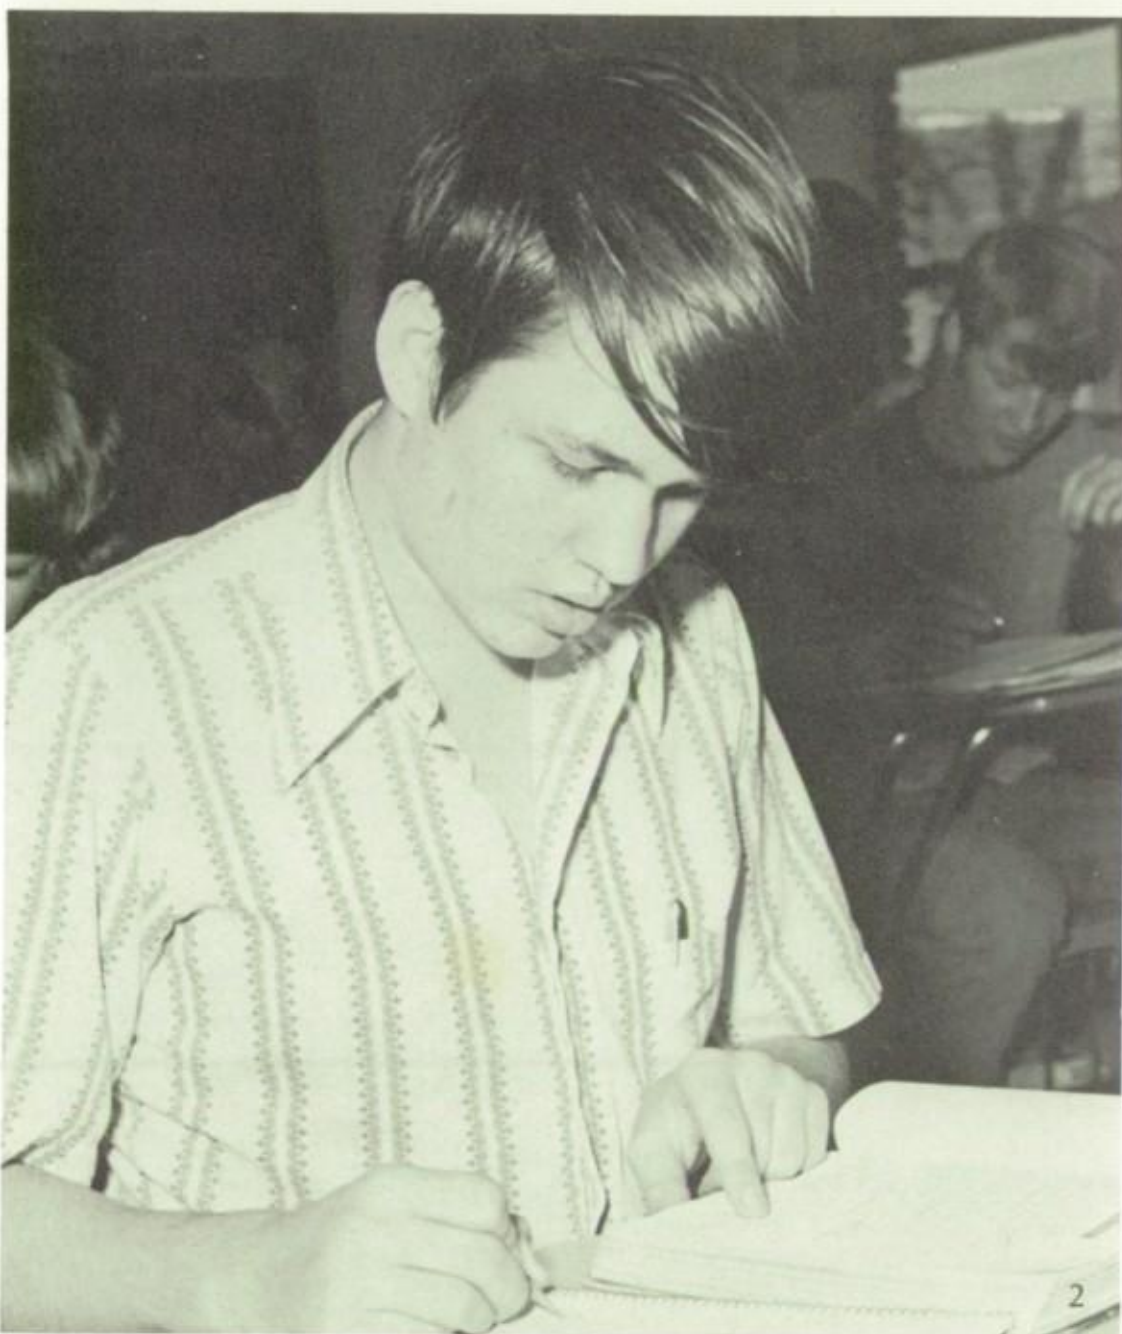

While tramping through the heart of the Santee Wildlife Refuge, students in the new 9-week Wildlife course gained first hand knowledge and observation in their study of nature. Environmental Problems and Plant Study were other mini-courses that afforded future ecologists and nature lovers a relevant outlet for their interests. Classes were exposed to the natural elements by way of field trips and outdoor excursions.

Those students wanting to study specific aspects of biology, but not having the time to take a full year course found the 9-week subjects Nutrition, Health Problems, the Human Body, and Reproduction and Genetics the solution to their problem. Other mini-courses offered were First Aid and Social Problems.

Students in Chemistry II, Physics, and the new Biology II course spent Christmas vacation typing papers concluding long tedious hours of research and experimentation. Several of the students' research papers were selected and presented at the Jr. Academy of Science Fair in March for judging.

(3) Absorbed by Mrs. Cain's demonstration, Mike Moore becomes acquainted with the method for measuring forces in physics. (4) Wayne Wehunt demonstrates the process needed in working with high voltage equipment in his "Jacob's Ladder" project for physics.

Formulas, Equations, & Angles Challenge Math Students

Mistakes, dulled erasers, scratch paper, and anxiety were symptoms exhibited throughout math classes. Students found that absorbing mathematical equations and explanations required their full attention.

To avoid mass confusion, teachers taught at speeds sufficient to meet each student's needs. College bound students entered courses like Algebra II, Trig.-Algebra, Trig.-Analytics, and Calculus. Business math classes were provided for students ready to enter business careers after graduation.

Student expressions signaled relief after dealing with tests that lasted until that final bell.

(1) Johnathan Bryan, John McArthur, Will Bynum, Bill Reynolds and Rick Blackman spend most of their time solving problems in 2nd period Trig.-Analytics class. (2) Geometry proofs don't come easy for Kevin Vaughters.

Divorce is Well-Discussed Topic In Sociology

Students venturing into the new, one-semester Sociology course soon found themselves involved in an intriguing discussion of divorce laws in S.C.. Mrs. Ivey, the Sociology instructor, invited a local attorney, Mr. John Hoar, to shed light on the perplexing subject for her inquisitive students. The question-loaded talk cleared up many of the student's misunderstandings of the grounds, procedure, and legalities of divorce. A visit to the Salvation Army's Home for Children was another feature on the Sociology agenda. As students toured the facility, they learned of the Army's many non-profit community activities and also gained a glimpse of true social work in progress.

(1) Paula Jackson leaves the Salvation Army's Home for Children after she and Sociology class members made a tour of the facility. (2) Burk Parrott, C. Fine Arts Dept. Encourages Artists to "Do Their Thing"

Self-expression was only an idea away for many art students at Sumter High. Individualism was expressed in block prints, etchings, sculptures, and paintings. Many projects were entered in the Scholastic Art Contest and five students received honors for their art work.

Musical notes seeping from the band and chorus rooms echoed through the halls adding their own touch to school life.

Band and chorus members worked long, hard hours throughout the year and gave the student body samples of combined talent during assemblies and pep rallies.

(3) Sticky fingers become a problem as art students mold figures using plaster of Paris. (4) A new face at Sumter High sees the world through rose-colored glasses.

Business Dept. Hums With New, Smooth— Running Machinery

Seven sparkling pieces of business equipment, including a stencil machine, IBM executive typewriters, and a digital calculator, were the newly-added attractions in the business department. Students in Business II classes used the new machines to full advantage as they typed, cut and ran off stencils, and assembled a twenty page booklet about the Gamecock basketball team for Coach Mitchell. The booklets, which included game programs, were sold to fans for 25¢ apiece at all of Sumter's home games.

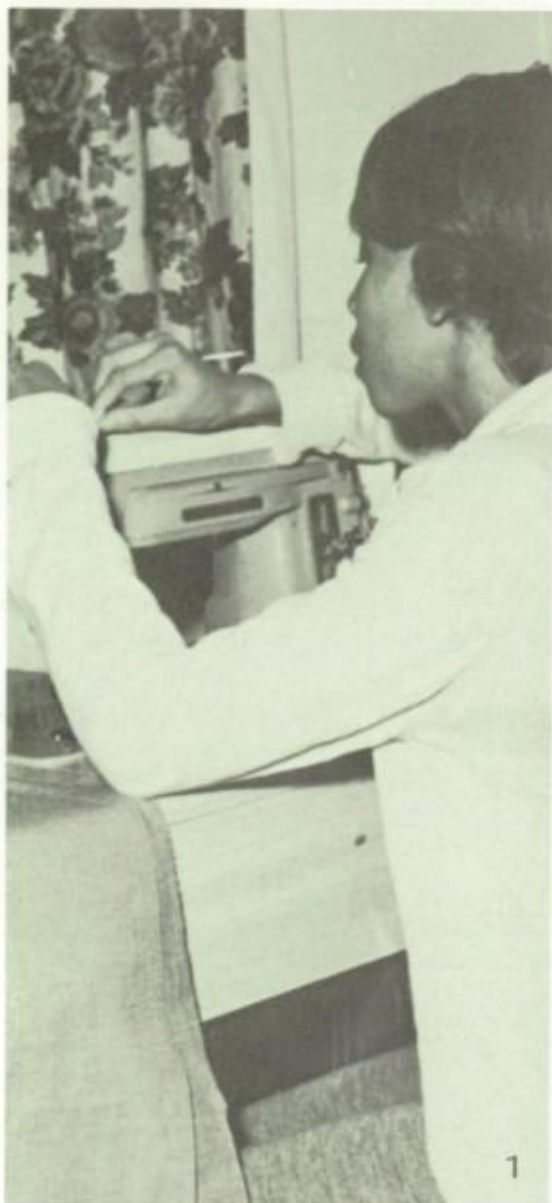

Business students also lent a helping hand to the Sumter Mental Health Center by addressing over 2000 envelopes. In addition, they addressed envelopes for civic and church organizations. These projects, along with learning business fundamentals in the classroom, provided valuable experience for students entering the business world upon graduation.

(1) Becky Thorn, Jean Gravitt, and other business students improve their skills by using the mimeograph machine to run off the pages of a booklet about the Gamecock basketball team. (2) Lou Ann Page types her assignment as Sara Barkley tries out the new dictating machine. (3) Sara Barkley finds math computations much easier when she uses the digital calculator.

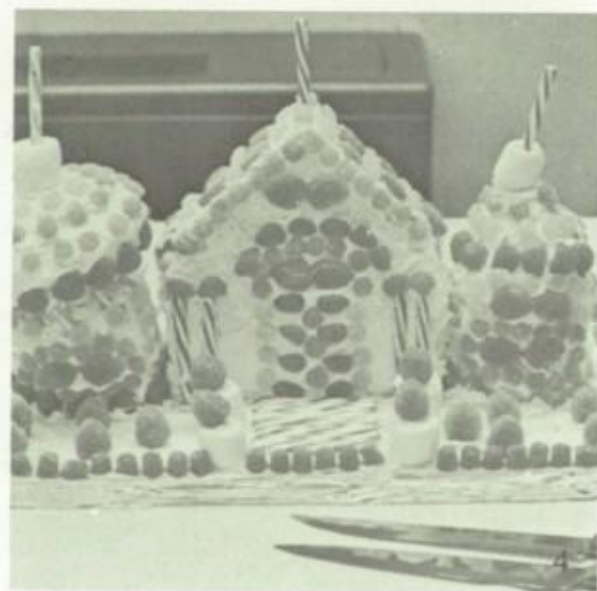

Home Economics Dept. Goes Co-ed.

Steaming pots, whirring sewing machines, and guys in red-checkered aprons were a few of the sights that dominated the Home Ec. scene. A host of engaging courses in practical living skills was made available to not just the female gender of Sumter High, but to "liberated" males as well.

Breaking away from traditional role-playing, boys actually boasted of cooking, sewing, and domestic business management accomplishments in Bachelor Living. Savory aromas pervaded the halls as students in the new Creative Cooking course concocted a variety of edibles from casseroles and salads to complicated cakes and pastries. Cutting, pinning, fitting and stitching constituted skills that proved both worthwhile and economical to Clothing Construction students who created fashionable outfits during classtime.

Although sewing and cooking comprised much of home ec. instruction, students were also introduced to interior decorating, nutrition, budgeting and child care and development.

(1) With steady hand and keen eye, Elizabeth Williams makes quick work of threading her sewing machine. (2) The Family Living "wedding party" proudly poses around the bridal spread as the cake is cut. (3) Stanley Brown and Greg Alford, better known for their football prowess, add the final touch to their epicurean masterpiece with flourish and flair. (4) Gumdrops, marshmallows, and peppermint sticks adorn the delectable castle cake prepared by Creative Cooking students.

Students Develop Salable Skills In Industrial Arts

Industrial arts students refined their woodworking skills while designing and building various projects in shop classes. A sense of pride in ones own accomplishments prevailed among these craftsmen. Safety was emphasized in all industrial arts classes since carelessness could cause serious accidents. Boys were required to wear safety glasses and were taught to handle the machines with utmost care.

Trade courses in brick masonry, carpentry, and auto body and fender offered interested students an opportunity to develop salable skills while still in high school.

(1) Tony Bryant, Frank James, Robert Daughtery, and Danny Lovelace find that accurate measurements are absolutely necessary when constructing woodworking projects. (2) Supplies are always needed for carpentry and Major Scott, Ronnie Rutherford, Nolon Bossard, and Edward Major make sure they are on time. (3) Using a level is only one of the skills Frankie Guillard learns in brick masonry.

Response To Leathercraft Course Overwhelming

Leathercraft instructor, Mr. Brooks, was overwhelmed by student response to the newly installed semester course in leathercraft. Class members were the envy of their peers when they completed such items as leather pocket-books, key cases, wallets, and belts. Once their tooling techniques were refined, industrious students made leather items for their friends for a small commission.

(1) Anticipating the finished product, Paula Lareau works hard on the first steps of her leathercraft project. (2) After much effort and hard work, Robbie Matthews adds the finishing touch to his watchband.

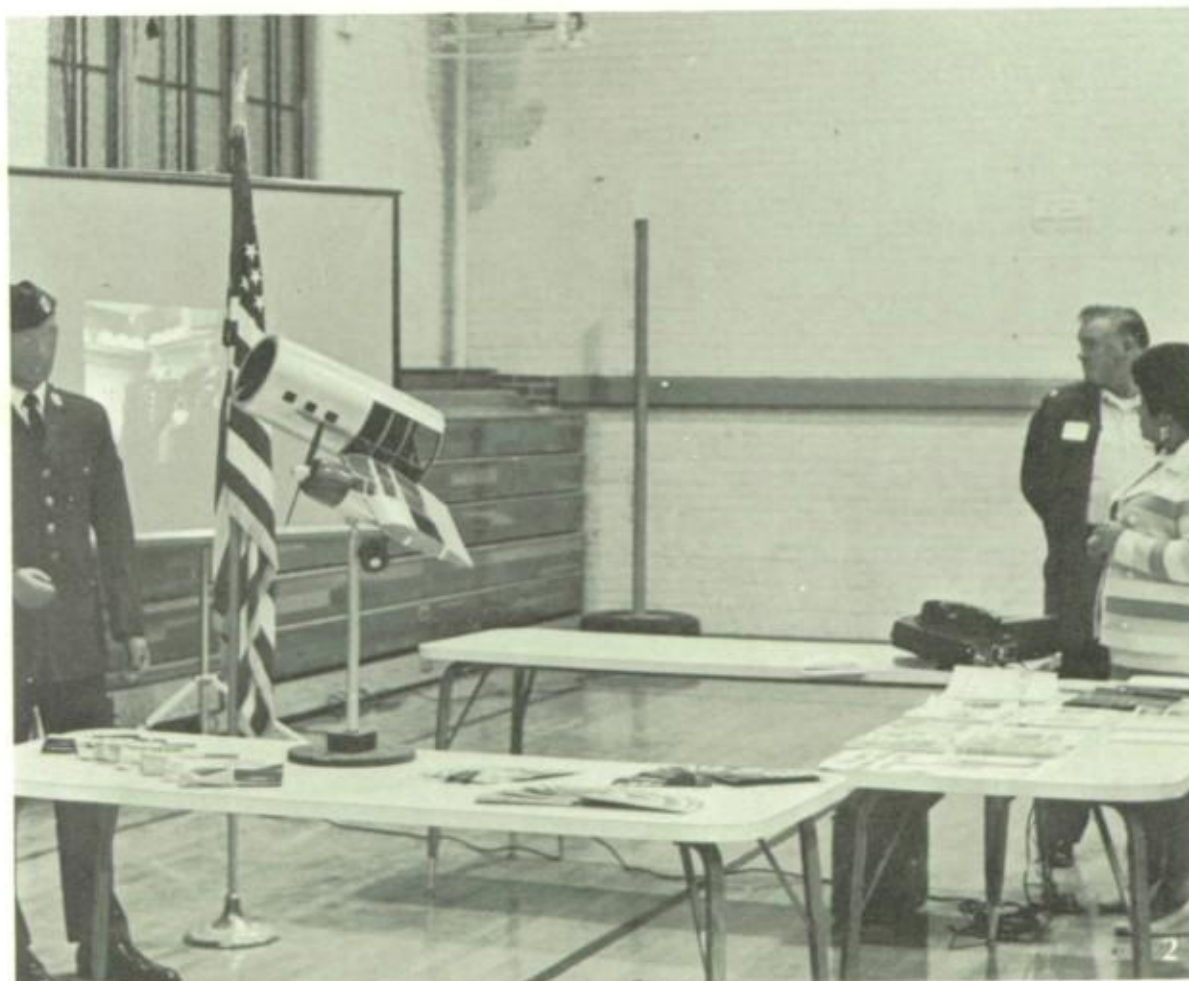

Cadets Visit Shaw Air Force Base

Cadets reported to school each Wednesday dressed in their regulation Air Force uniform as Wednesday became the day for inspection among Air Force Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps members. Self-respect, patriotism, and respect for authority were stressed in all ROTC classes.

Of all non-military schools, Sumter High had the largest ROTC wing in the entire free world. It also had the largest Color Guard in the U. S.

A visit to Shaw Air Force Base enabled cadets to see a large military base in operation and to gain a better understanding of its role in society.

Major General Daniel James, Deputy Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs, inspected the Honor Guard and Color Guard while visiting the SHS campus.

(1) Daily practices keep ROTC students busy learning new drill exercises and commands. (2) The ROTC display roused interest among parents at the annual Open House. (3) While video-taping an assembly, Major Smith and Don Bowman try solving technical difficulties.

Spirited Team Play Builds Physical Fitness

Aching muscles, misplaced gym clothes, and last-minute showers were problems that plagued all physical education students. Once they learned to cope with these inconveniences and joined in the games of volleyball, basketball, crab soccer, and badminton, they soon found phy. ed. could really be fun. Team players not only developed their ability to cooperate with others, but increased their own skills and self-determination.

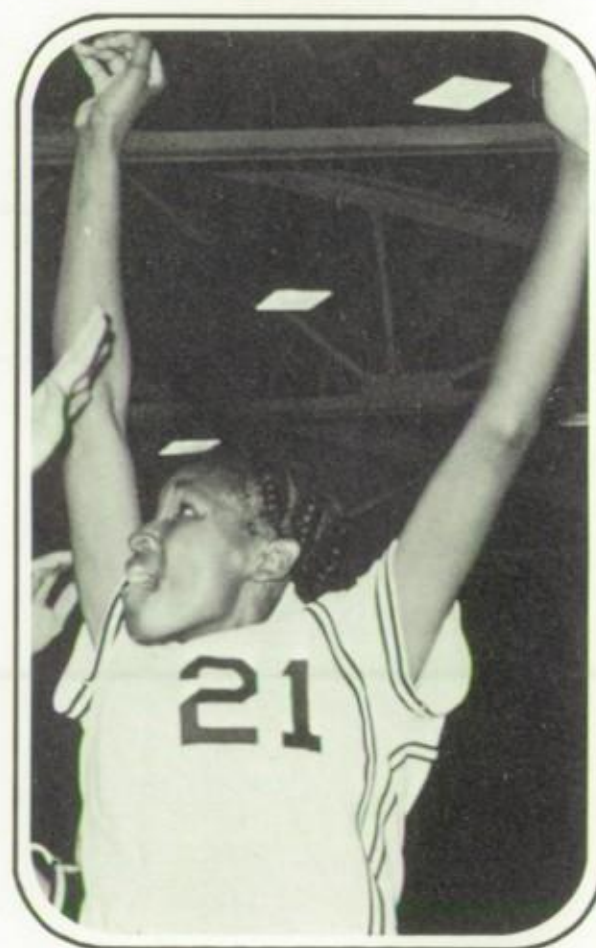

(1) One well placed volley scores a point in a heated battle of volleyball. (2) Sophomore girls take awkward positions during a game of crab soccer. (3) An enthusiastic player spikes the ball much to the dismay of his opponent.

Gamecocks Endure Long, Hot Summer Workouts

On August 7, coaches welcomed approximately 80 young prospects into the competitive Gamecock roost. After 7 tough days of training, drilling, and exercising, only 37 candidates were selected to make the trip to football camp at Laurinburg, North Carolina.

Throughout the week at Laurinburg, players worked on weak points and developed their skills, which would result in a unified team effort.

Between grueling practices and inter-squad and game scrimmages, coaches and players had time to unwind and relax.

A successful week at football camp ended with scrimmages against Summerville and Berkeley.

Newcomer, K. Ireland, Displays Strong Running Attack in Season's Opener

Clad in blue and white, a confident Gamecock team entered Memorial Stadium on Sept. 2, for the first game of the season against the Manning Monarchs.

Several long runs by Kevin Ireland sparked the Gamecock offense, but the smell of victory dwindled in closing seconds as Manning stunned the Gamecock defense with a long touchdown pass. Final score — 20-18.

Facing No. 1 ranked Lower Richland, the 'Cocks played a strong first half, going to the locker room with a score 6-0. Plagued by mistakes in the second half, however, there was no stopping the Diamond Hornets. Final score — 20-6.

Sumter Falls To Spring Valley; Scores First Win Over McClenaghan

On Sept. 15, the Gamecocks faced the Vikings of Spring Valley. The 'Cocks were unable to sustain an effective offensive attack against the strong Viking defense. Final score — 20-14.

It was evident from the opening kick-off that the Gamecocks were out to score a victory over arch-rival McClenaghan. The 'Cocks displayed a well balanced attack and captured their first victory. Final score — 24-12.

Coming off their first win, Sumter eagerly faced Brookland-Cayce. The adversaries matched each other point for point in the first quarter, however, the awesome B.C. single-wing offense proved to be too much for the determined, but outmatched Gamecock defense. Final score — 55-28.

Sumter Grabs First Region Win Against Hillcrest Wildcats

In the first region outing, the Gamecocks faced cross-town opponents, the Hillcrest Wildcats. Offensively, the 'Cocks mounted several scoring drives while the defense held the Wildcats to 12 points. Final score — 26-12.

Sumter traveled to Camden for their second region win. Senior QB, Steve Kirkland was injured in the early stages, but Ron Welchel proved to be an able replacement. Sumter capitalized on numerous Camden mistakes which provided opportunities for Gamecock scores. Final score — 39-13.

An impressive win over Camden paved the way for a highly spirited victory over the Conway Tigers. A determined defense held the Tigers to a mere 6 points while excellent blocking by the offensive line resulted in both of Sumter's TDs. Final score — 14-6.

Hopes for Region Title Vanish With W. Florence Loss

The Sumter High Gamecocks, sporting a 3-0 conference record, entered West Florence Stadium with intentions of wrapping up the Region 6A Conference title. Hindered by past mistakes, the 'Cock's offense withered under the hammering Knight defense which held the Gamecocks to 22 points for the entire game. Final score — 22-50.

With all hopes gone for winning the region crown, the 'Cock's faced their last adversary of the season, the Hartsville Red Foxes. This battle was a great defensive exhibition by both teams. The only points came from a safety scored by the Gamecock defense. Final score — 2-0.

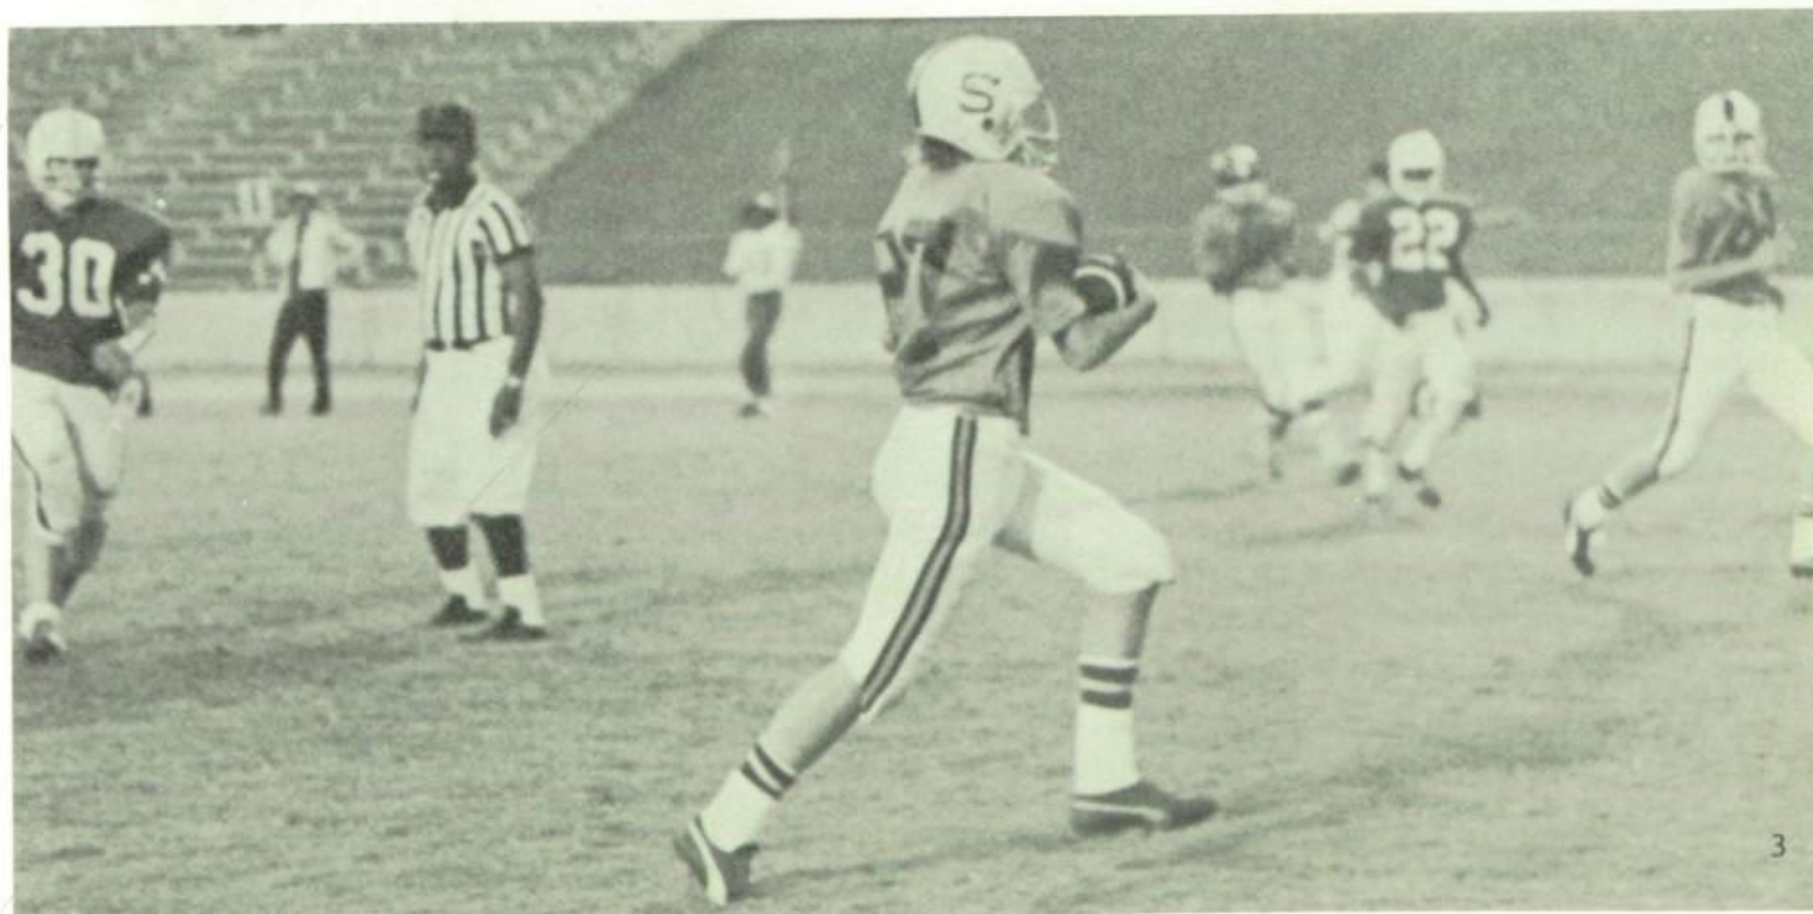

(1) Ireland gains ground as Heriot tries to stop defender; (2) 'Cocks rip through spirit banner for last game of season.

Jayvees Go Undefeated in '72 Season

The Sumter High Baby Birds, under the leadership of Head Coach Bob Cherry, established themselves as a regional powerhouse. From the beginning of the season, it was evident the Birds would be a tough opponent for challenging teams. The potent offense, engineered by Jimmy Wells, put more points on the board than any other J.V. team. Running backs Mack and Davis behind the blocking of the offensive line were called on time and time again to gain clutch yardage. The powerful defense contained their opponents by causing numerous turnovers. This provided the offense with golden opportunities to score. These combined factors led to a very successful season; 9-0-1.

Next year Coach Noonan can look forward to receiving several mature and experienced players.

Cheerleaders Add Sparkle and Spirit To Sports Events

Creating an atmosphere of enthusiasm and zeal among Sumter fans, SHS cheerleaders supported Gamecocks through both victory and defeat.

Practice got under way in August with head cheerleader, Beth Allen, teaching the fourteen girls new chants, cheers and pep calls. Each morning at 7:00 sharp, cheerleaders gathered at Swan Lake Gardens clad in cut-off jeans and T-shirts for a strenuous three hour work-out.

Armed with buckets of soapy water and bright smiles, the cheerleaders sponsored a car wash in order to purchase materials for new uniforms.

This year all Gamecock athletes carried their gear in blue and gold tote-bags, compliments of the cheerleaders. Money was raised for the project by selling ads to local businesses.

Throughout the year, cheerleaders spread sunniness and high spirits by making pep banners, selling ribbons, organizing cook-outs and parties for the athletes, and leading classes during Gamecock Week.

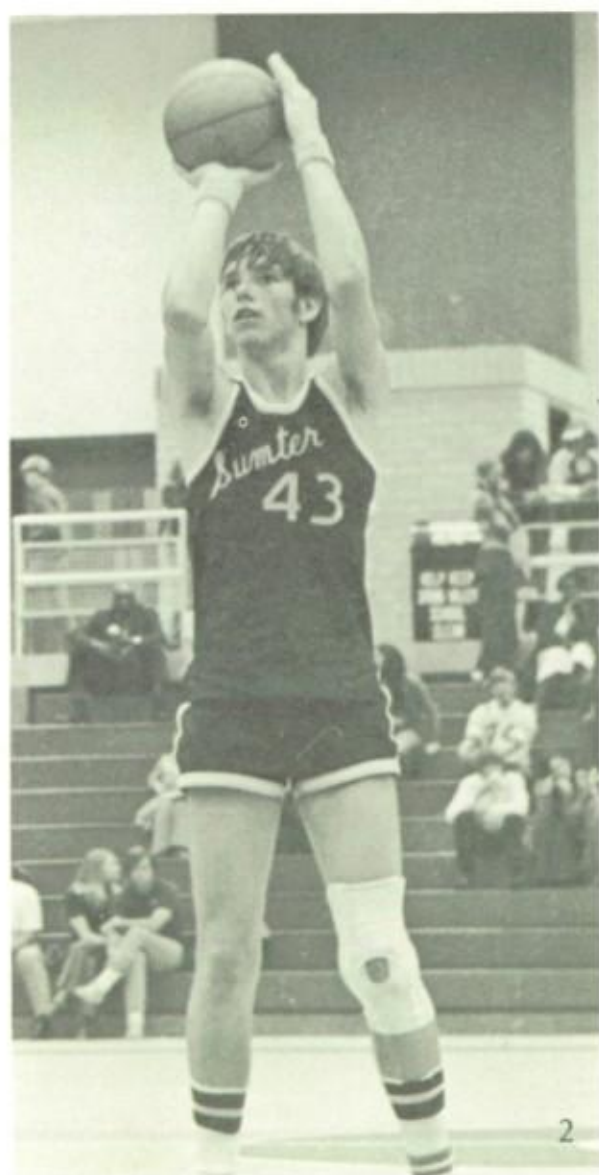

Opposite Page: (1) Gathering in the gym foyer after school, Cathy Cleary, Michelle Shaw, Denise Funderburke, and Beth Allen practice cheering routines until they are performed in perfect unison. (2) Theresa, Beth, Cathy, and Cynthia Solomon beckon fans to "Stand up and holler." Coach Mitchell Anticipates Winning Season With 8 Returning Lettermen

Upon completion of the '72 pigskin season, attention promptly turned to basketball, and energetic voices could be heard once again echoing from the "Cock Pit". Many thought the current season would be "the big year".

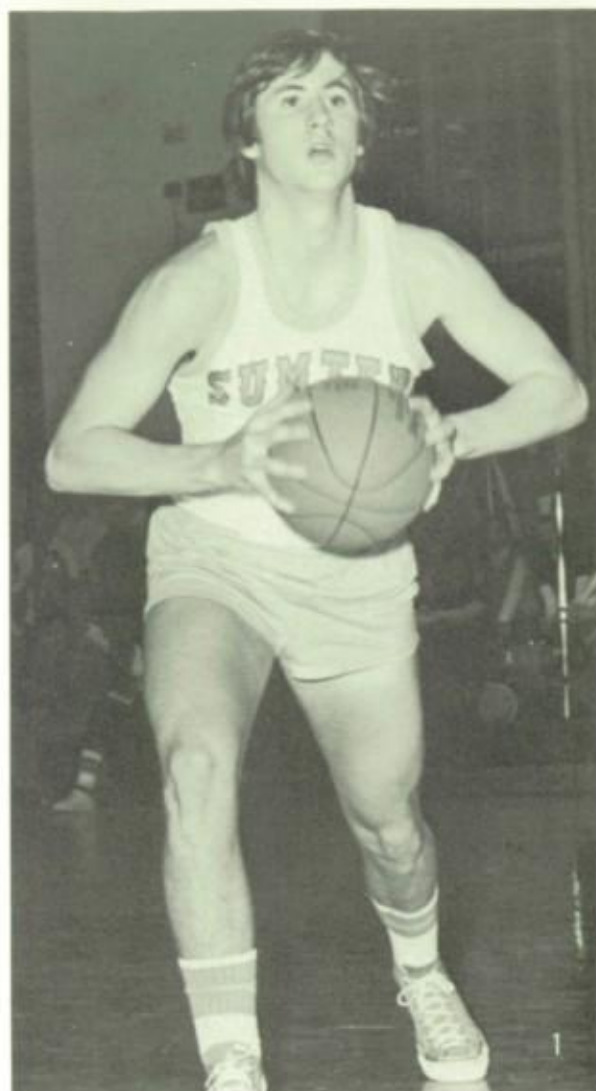

With open arms, Coach Brad Mitchell welcomed eight returning lettermen, including three starters from the '71-'72 team. After weeks of pure running, tough practices, and sheer exhaustion, Mitchell's winning machine was prepared to encounter any foe.

The Gamecock big men, Barry Parker at 6'7", Will Bynum, 6'6", Humzie Way, 6'4", and Randy Weston, 6'6", insured powerful rebounding strength while the quick hands and superb shooting of the backcourt men added a second dimension to Gamecock Basketball.

Opposite Page: (1) A breather during practice is always welcomed. (2) Poise and concentration is the name of the game. (3) Position insures Bynum a sure two points. This Page: (1) Randy Weston lays up a sure basket. (2) A crafty steal by Slater results in a bucket for the Cocks.

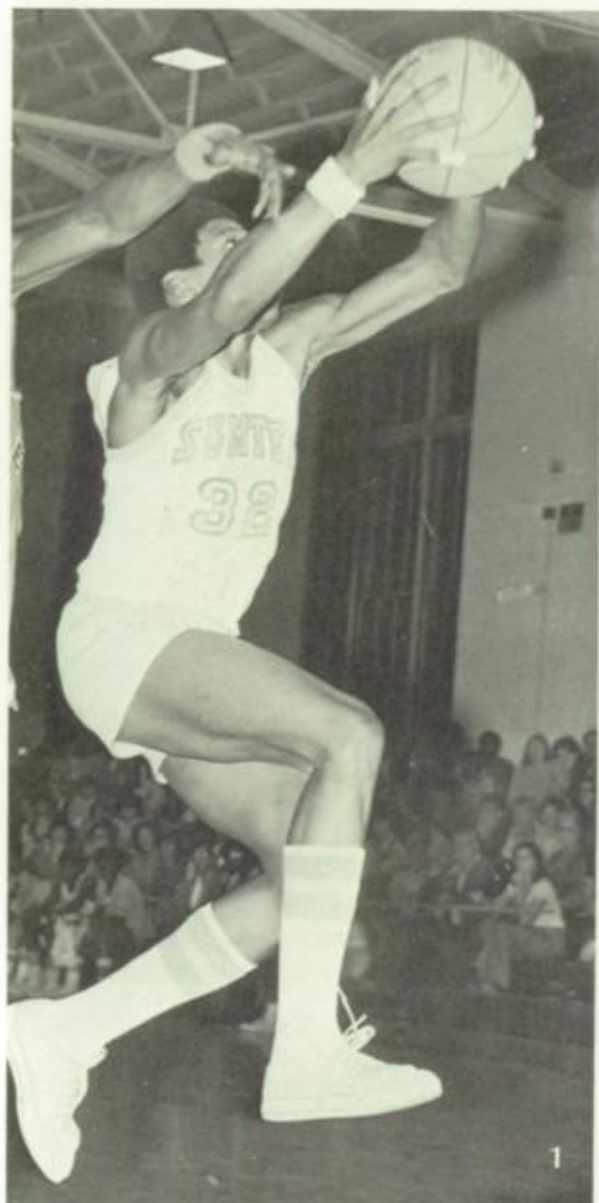

Cocks Defeat Columbia to Grab Sumter Invitational Championship

Height and quickness jelled in the first outing of the season as the 'Cocks defeated Lancaster 61 to 60. The following week the powerful Spring Valley Vikings handed Sumter its first defeat of the season by a narrow three point margin. The next meeting between these two clubs proved to be no different as the Vikings again defeated the 'Cocks by a slim three points. The well-coached Spring Valley team was the only Club able to put it together and cut the unpredictable Gamecocks prior to the Sumter Invitational Tournament. Spring Valley's jinx came to an abrupt halt in the semi-final round as they defeated the Vikings and went on to capture the Holiday title in convincing manner against the Columbia Capitals.

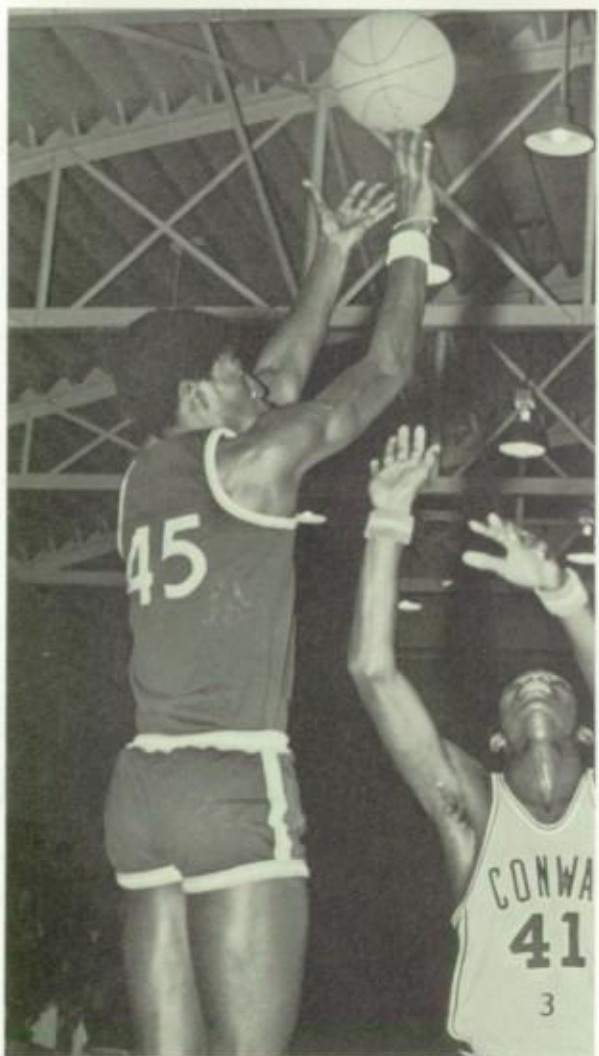

Will Bynum received the coveted MVP award for the second consecutive year.

Gamecocks Claim Region Championship; Gain Berth in Lower State Play

Sparked by increased confidence in their own ability and the smell of another region championship, the Cocks dominated the action in their first five region contests. But all hopes seemed doomed when the team lost a hard-fought battle to West Florence and floundered under the pressure tactics applied by the Camden Bulldogs.

However, the strong competition in Region VI proved fatal to other contenders and Sumter grabbed the Region title with a win over the Hartsville Red Foxes followed by a 91-56 victory over Hillcrest.

Girls Capture #3 Rating in Region VI Tournament

Beginning the season under new head coach Strib Barton seemed to spark an enthusiastic spirit for this year's girls basketball team. Although they were young and inexperienced, this did not daunt the determination of the girls. Coaches Barton and Witt realized this and centered game plans around girls who wanted to play and give their best effort. The hard work paid off as the girls fought several battles right down to the wire.

The shooting strength for the girls was not centered around any one person, but featured a balanced scoring attack.

The increasing enthusiasm and spirit displayed by the team created a new interest on the part of the student body.

Powerful Baby Birds Blitz Opponents

The transition from junior high to senior high didn't seem to affect the confidence or ability of the Jayvee players. From the opening jump ball to the final buzzer, the Baby Birds literally stomped each adversary who ventured into the "Cock Pit." Their only defeat during regular season play came on the road at the hands of the West Florence Knights.

The strong defense displayed by the 'Cocks allowed their opponents an average of only 31 points per game. The shooting of Moses, Hunter, and Davis anchored the balanced offense.

Rebounding became a determining factor in the high scoring games with the transfer of Moses from the Varsity squad. He initiated the fast break with many quick outlet passes.

Cross Country Runners Struggle Through Rebuilding

After winning four consecutive State Titles, Coach Bill Boatman and the Sumter High Harriers faced a year of rebuilding. Losing seven seniors, that proved to be quite a task with only one returning letterman, Danny Stokes.

Although there were not enough runners on the team to insure a win in the State Track Meet, Coach Boatman had the Gamecock Harriers compete for valuable experience.

The season record did not indicate the many miles they ran, but their diligent practice should prove beneficial next season.

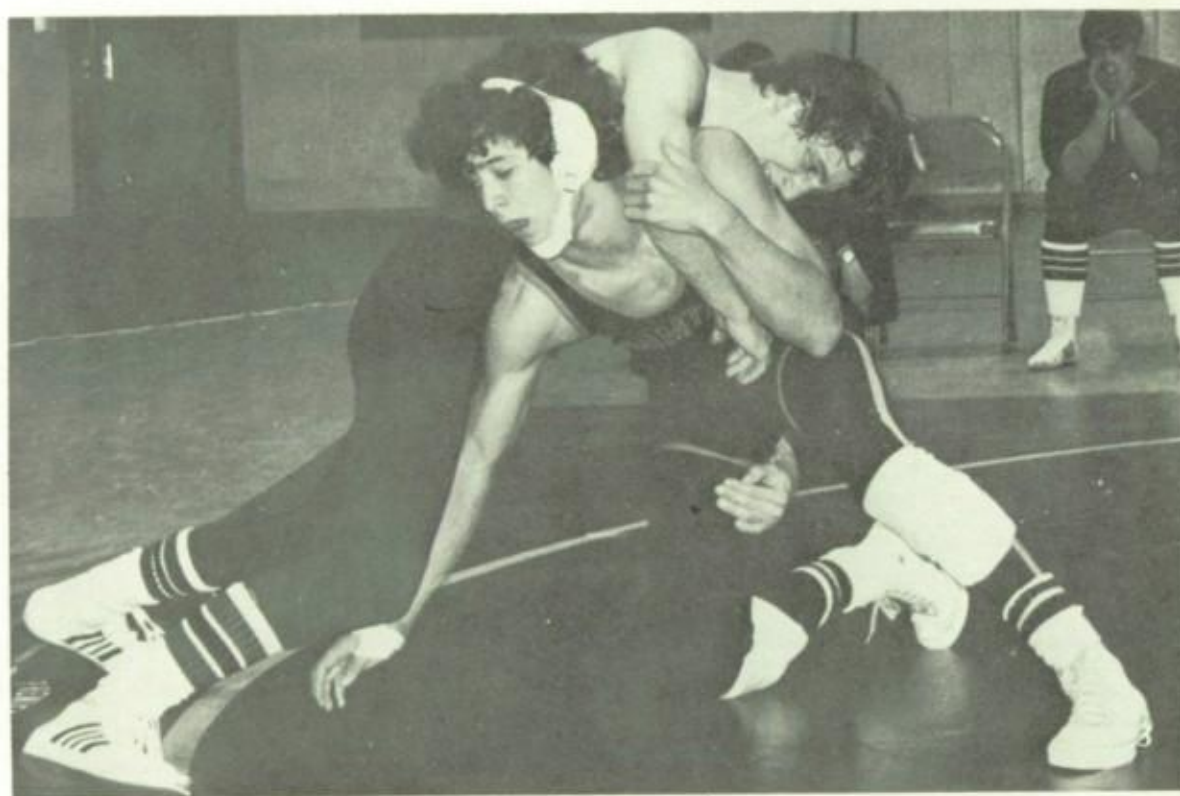

(1) Herbert Heyward (271) forces a sprint to the finish line; (2) Clinton Rembert keeps a steady pace as he heads for the wooded trails; (3) Danny Stokes paces Gamecock runners with a 16th place finish in the State Meet; (4) Tommy Nicholes symbolizes the loneliness of cross country runners. (5) Coaches Boatman and Venturella clock individual runners in the State Meet.

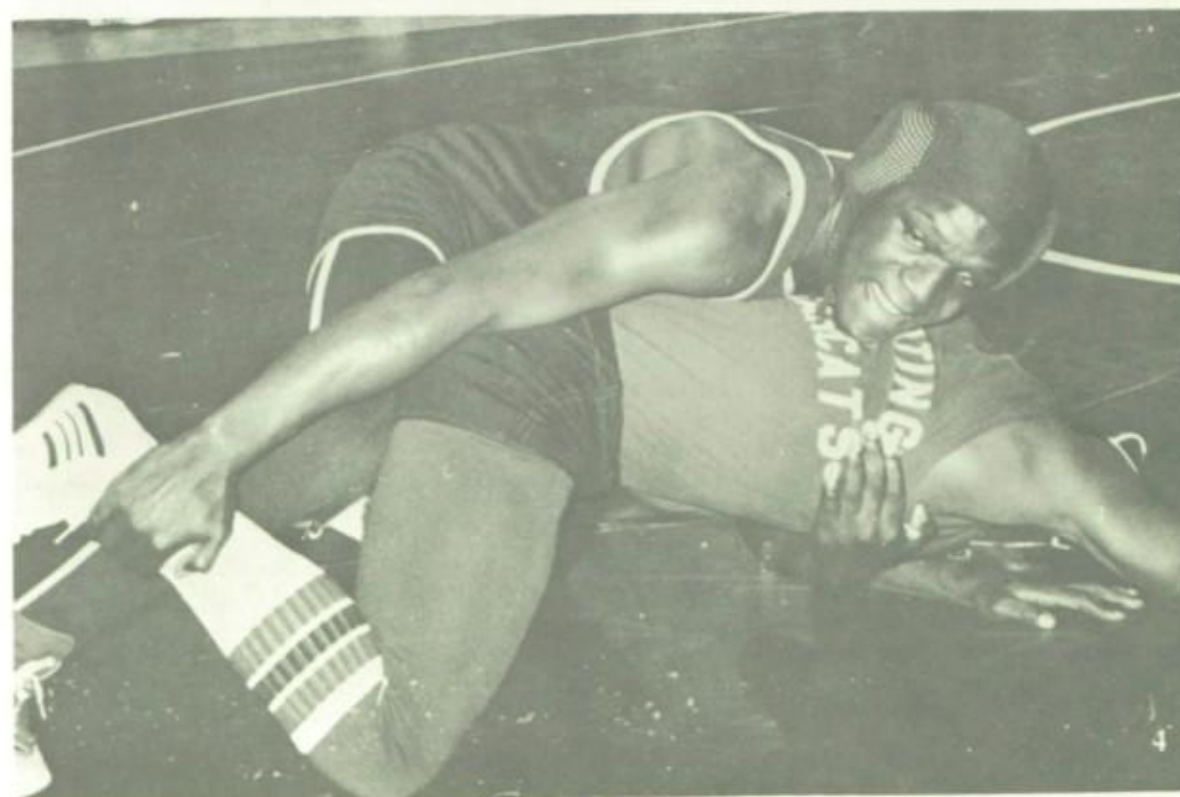

Sumter's Strong-Arm Squad Takes Top Honors in Region Wrestling

In only their third year of competition, the Gamecock wrestling team developed into one of the major powers of the region. Riding on the undefeated seasons of junior, Frank Moses, and freshman, Pat Crackel, Sumter had an unblemished record in the region and walked away with the title. The strength and consistent performance of Rex Moseley, Wilbur Dyer, Greg Terrill, Scott Crackel, and Harry Dingle were also major factors in compiling a winning record. In play outside the region, Sumter dropped only one decision to Lower Richland.

Although the grapplers did not fare well in the state championship rounds, the highlight for Sumter was the second place finish of Frank Moses in the heavyweight division.

(1) Charles Bradley lifts his man off the mat leading to a take down. (2) A tight hold doesn't seem to dampen the determination of Rex Moseley as he battles for an escape. (3) Jim Darby attempts a crucial take down in Brookland-Cayce match. (4) Wilbur Dyer rides his opponent for valuable points to secure a win.

Booters Return With Second Place Trophy In State Tourney

After a sluggish start, the Gamecock Booters emerged as state contenders with an aggressive offensive attack spearheaded by Danny Chandler, Ricky Timmons, Win Burnett, Tony Dillon, and Mark Kirk. Rookie fullbacks Jonathan Bryan, Bill Reynolds, and Howie Quackenbush provided solid defense to support the scoring attack. Halfbacks Rocky Rivers, Alan Pinkerton, and Glen Canty also furnished strong support.

In first round action of the state play-offs, Sumter defeated a powerful Dreher team by the score of 4-3. The 'Cocks then faced tough Airport for the state title. Airport opened the scoring with a goal in the 1st quarter and things looked dim for Sumter until Danny Chandler tied the score with a goal in the 3rd period. At the end of a ten minute overtime period, the score was still tied. The Eagles were declared winners on the basis of the number of corner kicks during the game.

Student Council Spearheads Annual Gamecock Week

With the S.C. Leadership Award tucked under its wing, the SHS Student Council pursued new projects for 1972-73. In an effort to battle the age-old enemy, student apathy, the Council got right down to business. After weeks of planning, enthusiasm shook the walls of SHS during Gamecock Week. Through pep rallies, spirit chain sales, float competition, and pep contests, student involvement reached its peak.

Twice monthly, students escaped the daily routine of classes to enjoy activity period. The time was used for club meetings, crafts, movies, games, and intramural sports.

Raising money for the student activity fund was also a council enterprise, but the candy-selling feat was actually tackled by all students.

Dances, rock-festivals, and a student-faculty basketball game were projects initiated to raise money for the Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Jr. Marshals Aid In '71-'72 Graduation; Journalists Tapped For Quill & Scroll

Taking part in the '71-'72 graduation exercises was the highlight of the year for juniors selected to serve as marshals. Chosen and approved by faculty members, junior marshals assisted during Class Day, Awards Night, and graduation by handing out programs and showing relatives and friends of the graduates to their seats. Ten select honor juniors led graduating seniors to their final seating arrangement at Sumter Memorial Stadium on the night of May 29.

Superior work on school publications was climaxed with a student's induction into Quill and Scroll, the International Honor Society for High School Journalists. Sumter High's twenty Quill and Scroll members, who must be in the upper third of their class scholastically, represented the school's four publications, the Paragon, Cock's Quill, Signature, and The Gamecock Show.

25 Seniors Qualify For December Honor Society Induction

Supporting a Korean orphan, compiling a student directory, and providing tutorial services for high school, junior high and elementary students were the major projects executed by the National Honor Society.

The Society, whose members are selected on the basis of such outstanding qualities as character, scholarship, leadership, and service, staged a December induction ceremony for 25 senior candidates. Feelings of accomplishment created a solemn but ceremonious atmosphere as the installation and pinning of new members took place before proud parents and friends. Dr. Anna Reuben shared her philosophies of life with the group and offered sound advice and encouragement for the future.

A second ceremony for Juniors meeting the stringent qualifications and achievement levels was planned for early spring.

Paragon Staff Captures An Array of Student Moods

Skipped lunch hours and five o'clock school days became a regular routine for workers on the school yearbook, the Paragon. "McDonald" hamburgers and cokes supplied the needed energy boost that kept staff members constantly employed with picture cropping, copy revision, and money managing.

Paragon staffers ended their summer vacation early in August and began toying with ideas for the production of the 1972-73 yearbook.

Catching students and classes off-guard, Paragon photographers captured true expressions of school daze. With a Thesaurus in one hand and a chewed pencil in the other, copy writers found that expressing thoughts on paper and filling copy blocks was a hard task. Weather conditions slowed publications, and final deadlines were extended, giving staff members needed time to pull loose ends together.

Tired staffers rejoiced as the last page of the 1972-73 school year was sealed and mailed to the publishing company.

Cock's Quill Runs Into Publishing Difficulties

Through factual news stories, creative feature articles, and bold editorials, The Cock's Quill kept Sumter High students informed on school activities and important events.

Write-ups on teenage marriages and pregnancies, legalization of marijuana, vandalism of school property, and student rights sparked vigorous student reactions expressed in letters to the editor. The sports page, with its accurate coverage, descriptive copy, and action-packed pictures, was the page most Cock's Quill readers turned to first.

Striving to meet deadlines, editors were confronted with a lack of interest among staff members which resulted in fewer published papers.

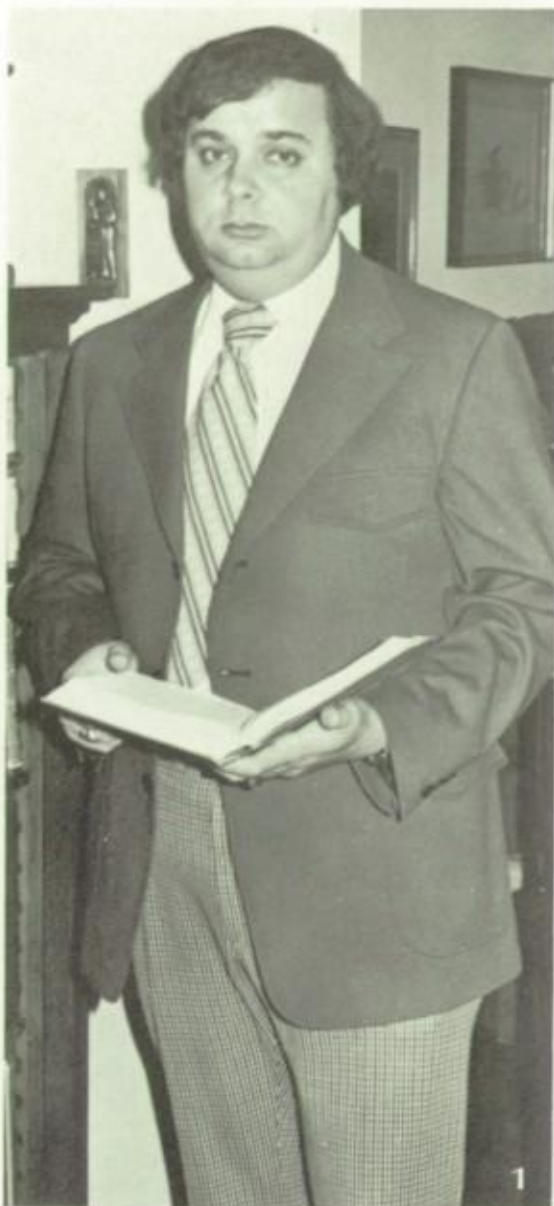

Prose, Poetry, And A Panorama Of Art Fill Pages Of Signature

Reading student manuscripts, selecting just the right photograph or piece of art work to portray an idea, designing a distinctive cover, and deciding on an appropriate layout were just a few of the tasks Signature editors and staff members faced and fulfilled to produce the Sumter High literary magazine.

Contributors revealed their inward meditations in compositions of poetry, short stories, and essays. These compositions and art works were reviewed by the Editorial Board and any plagiarized work or substandard paper was discarded.

Early spring found editors working long hours at the home of their adviser, Mr. Locklear in order to meet their April deadline.

Broadcast Club Brings School News to Life on WDXY

Every Saturday morning at 11:30, while many SHSers were just rolling out of bed, "The Gamecock Show" came to life on radio station WDXY.

The Sumter High Broadcast Club, responsible for the award-winning show, worked for hours each week preparing school news, features, sports coverage, and special reports.

With the assistance of WDXY news director, Ron Stevens, and adviser, Major James Smith, the members taped their weekly presentation each Tuesday night to keep the Sumter community up-to-date on current school news.

Band Room's New Gold Carpet Enlivens Practice Sessions

Marching band season began with a week of camp at Wofford College. New officers, sophomore initiation, early morning drills, long hours spent memorizing music, learning new faces and training in anticipation of the state contest built unity. Autumn afternoon practices helped achieve perfection in pre-game and half-time shows. Pep music added to the atmosphere of football and basketball games. Band Booster candy sales enriched the anticipation of the triennial trip to Florida.

The state contest at Airport High School brought tense feelings, high spirits, last minute tune-ups, meditation, concentration and performance.

Marching in the Christmas parade, providing music for the NHS Installation and the Christmas Assembly reflected Sumter High's talent, integrity, and pride.

New Realm of Music and Marching Opens for Sophomores

Sophomore musicians arriving at summer band camp were cordially welcomed by veteran band members and a shower of eggs, peanut butter, and grease. The initiation exercises soon subsided, however, and the newcomers spent most of their time learning the fundamentals of marching.

Although tense, nervous, and excited prior to their first performance at the Sumter-Manning football game, sophomores had little difficulty keeping time with the more experienced senior band.

Providing a spirited atmosphere for Council Street pep rallies and assemblies, and joining with the senior band in preparation for the state marching competition were other activities that improved and refined the skills of the sophomore players.

Choral Selections Enliven School and Public Functions

Using music as a means of self-expression, chorus students united to make harmonious sounds under the direction of Mrs. White. Long practice sessions and busy planning prepared the chorus for public appearances, assemblies, and the state music festival.

The Christmas assembly was the first of many presentations. Although anxious faces were seen among chorus members before the performance, there was no need for their apprehension as the musical selections were well received by the appreciative audience.

Modern, traditional, and spiritual selections were included in the Spring Concert program presented by the SHS chorus.

Le Cercle Francais Gathers in the Homes of Members

French students took a novelty approach in establishing a French Club that would do away with stiff, after-school club meetings, and replaced them with informal, relaxed gatherings at the homes of club members. French games were played, songs were sung, and skits were preformed at the monthly meetings.

At one particular meeting held at the home of Denise Perry, club members were treated to a French cuisine soup, "bouillabaisse".

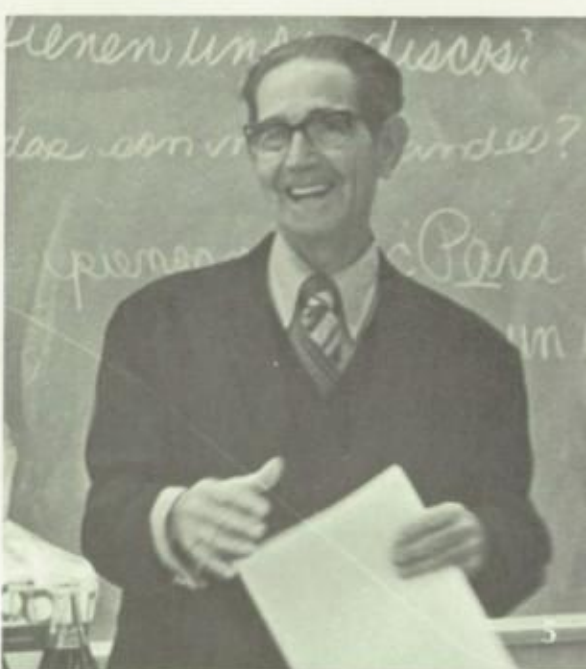

Sounds of the farewell song "Bon Soir Mes Amis, Bon Soir", resounded throughout the houses at the close of each meeting.

The French Club also travelled to Columbia one Sunday afternoon to see the hilarious comedy "Le Medecin Malgre Lui" presented by Le Treteau de Paris.

Spanish Club Sees a Year of Action

Spanish Club members experienced "never a dull moment" as advisors and club officers met during activity periods to plan a slate of fun and educational activities.

On October 30, the Spanish Club threw a huge Halloween cookout and masquerade party at Swan Lake Gardens. The laughter of members was slow in dying down as they recalled the humorous costumes and events of the evening.

Translating abilities were exercised when Professor Meir from Morris College paid a visit. The native of Cuba gave a talk, entirely in Spanish, on his homeland and his family's flight from Cuba.

The club also took part in the Christmas assembly and welcomed the new year with a Spanish fiesta.

Religious Concepts Intrigue Bible and Philosophy Clubbers

Through Bible study, devotionals, and prayer, the Bible Club, one of the highest in membership, gave students the opportunity to share their religious beliefs and experiences in the spirit of brotherhood and trust.

A mere thought or idea was all that was necessary to cause Philosophy Club members to delve into an in-depth discussion and exchange of ideas. Minds were constantly challenged as the young philosophers attempted to relate knowledge gained from personal experience to the thoughts and concepts of the great thinkers. Club members found the most fascinating topics for discussion were the religions of the world. Rabbi Magidovitch from Temple Sinai, and Bishop Alldridge from the Church of the Latter Day Saints were invited to expose members of the Philosophy Club to new dimensions in religion.

Members of Library Club Sacrifice Free Time to Aid Nearly 2300 Students

As one of the most important and functional facilities in the school, the library ran smoothly and efficiently through the efforts of hard working library club members.

The members sacrificed their study periods and free time to undertake a multitude of tasks necessary for the library to aid the hundreds of students that utilize it each day.

These jobs included checking out and filing books, magazines, and daily newspapers, aiding in the location of reference materials, and setting up the microfilm machines when necessary.

Informative bulletin boards and unique displays geared to draw attention to current happenings and newly-arrived literature were created each month by club members.

Fifteen Present Papers At S.C. Jr. Academy Of Science

Young scientists, motivated by their association with the Jr. Academy of Science Club, delved into serious exploration and experimentation in areas of physics, biology, and chemistry. After three months of gathering information, testing, and experimenting, papers were prepared on the basis of research and data. During club meetings, members discussed their projects, gave progress reports and humorous accounts of some of their experimental failures.

Fifteen projects were selected to be submitted for presentation at the annual Jr. Academy of Science meeting, March 29-31 at the University of S. C. Some of the topics included Infrared Photography, Electrophoresis, Coordination Compounds of Oxygen, and Soil testing.

McGovern Defeats Nixon By Sizeable Margin

Like Americans all over the country, Sumter High students found themselves completely caught up in the "Great Presidential Race of '72".

After studying voting and election procedures, members of the Political Systems club joined with the Student Council and held a mock election to give Nixon and McGovern supporters the chance to express their presidential choices. Fiery campaigns were conducted in social studies classes, students were registered during lunch, and on Monday, Nov. 6, SHS voters took to the polls.

Although Richard Nixon won the race by a landslide in the national election, the choice of Sumter High students were none other than George McGovern.

Black Culture, Student Relations Engage Club Interest

Emphasis on Black culture was made the chief function of the Black Heritage club. Meeting during lunch and activity periods, members planned various programs in an effort to bring about a new Black awareness. Their performance in the Christmas assembly revealed scenes of family unity, joyous dancing, and colorful costumes, all a part of the African Christmas. A presentation during Black History Week, postponed when Sumter became snowbound, was given in March.

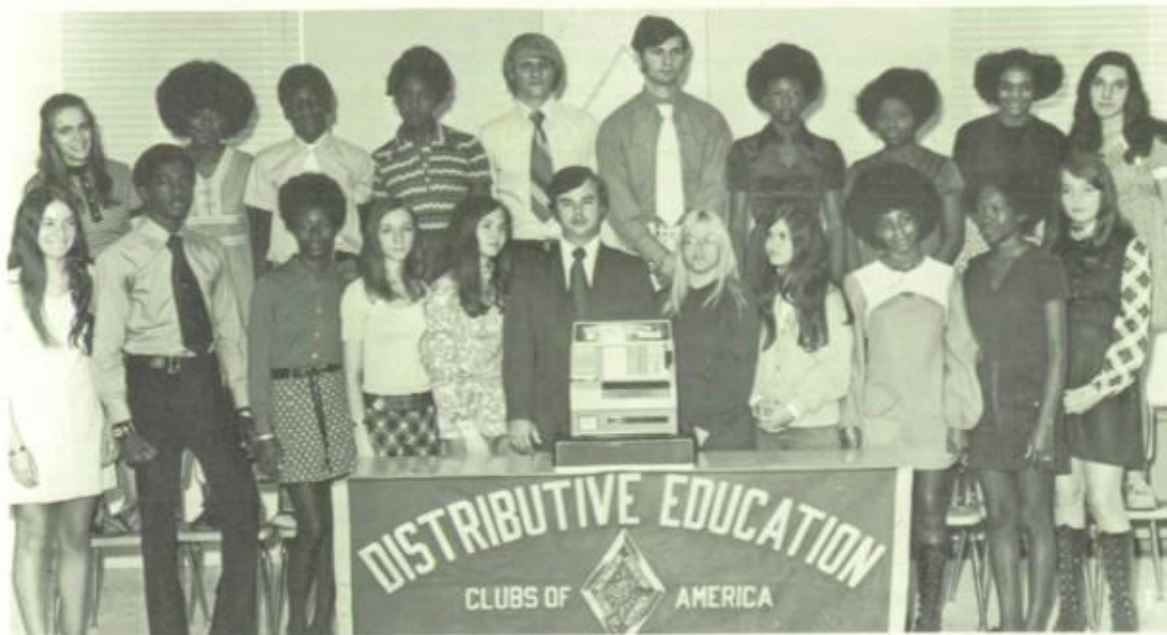

Brotherhood and togetherness, common concerns of all, became the theme around which the Human Relations club revolved. Discussions on controversial topics led to a purging of frustrations and a clearer understanding of student emotions. Club members joined in painting posters and producing skits dealing with racial conflicts and student-teacher relationships.

Employer-Employee Banquet Highlights DECA Year

DECA members found it necessary to become well versed in the operation of the competitive, free enterprise system if they were to succeed in marketing careers. To gain additional experience, Dean Burr, Kenneth Gregg, Sherry Hyatt, James Barwick, Mike Nesbitt, and Terry Coleman attended the State Leadership Conference. James and Mike were voting delegates and Terry served on the Board of Governors.

Local, district, and state competitive events gave members ample opportunities to display their skills and techniques in the areas of salesmanship, merchandizing, and retailing.

For a change of pace, DECA members entertained their bosses at the annual Employer-Employee Banquet held at the Bar-B-Que Hut.

Job Possibilities Important To D.O. Members

Diversified Occupations members combined classroom instruction with on-the-job training to earn money while learning a trade. Since these students worked part of each day and were not able to participate in many school functions, the club provided a school-oriented activity.

Considerable time was spent in surveying job opportunities in Sumter and investigating the possibilities of advancements in the different trades.

Two of the unusual jobs held by D.O. members were making concrete bird-baths and serving as an aide in a figure salon.

FHA Members Devote Time And Energies To Community Projects

The Spirit of Christmas prevailed when Future Homemakers delivered "goodies" and groceries to residents of Community Nursing Home and Solomon's Nursing Home. The girls prepared enough food for a Christmas Party.

Members spent many late afternoon hours during the fall months collecting clothing for the Red Cross. The underprivileged citizens in the area benefited from this community service project.

Moans of anguish and cracking of joints gradually diminished as Council Street members loosened their muscles during weekly exercise programs.

Using "Explore Roles Extend Goals" as their major theme, members observed National FHA week, April 1-7.

Painting, drawing, sculpturing, and bottle remodeling kept the creative hands of Art Club members busy throughout the year. The club, along with Miss Smith's art classes, visited the Scholastic Art Award Exhibit in Columbia, and planned their own exhibit of art projects.

Knitting needles, embroidery needles, and crochet hooks clicked at a rapid pace during sessions of the Needlecraft Club. After the instruction, helpful hints, and advice from adviser, Mrs. Davidson, members of the club proudly attired themselves in the shawls, ponchos, hats, mittens, and vests they had created through their newly-acquired skills. A needlecraft display was set up in the office lobby at Council Street.

The Drama Club lit up the dark stage on several occasions as they produced skits for English classes, and plays for the student body. The pride and joy of the amateur dramatists was the production of Shirley Jackson's The Lottery.

New Clubs Draw Scrabble and Chess Enthusiasts

Equipped with dictionaries, Scrabble Club members met during the Friday activity hour hoping to find new letter combinations and to outscore their competition.

Monthly activity periods also saw chess enthusiasts challenging their opponents in a cloak of deep concentration.

Basic knowledge of chess strategy was all that was necessary among club members, for the "Fischer-Spassky World Chess Tournament" provided all the incentive. A series of chess play-offs and tournaments was arranged in an attempt to name the Sumter High Chess Champion.

Chess club members found their hour of silent effort rewarding when the word "check-mate" broke the barrier and won the game.

Key Clubbers Lend Manpower to Environmental Coalition

After spending a week at the National Key Club Convention in Washington, D. C., six Key Clubbers, including President, Charlie Yates, returned with a multitude of new ideas and projects to be tackled by the SHS Key Club.

With its main endeavor service to the community, the Key Club found many organizations in desperate need of eager volunteer workers. The Sumter County Environmental Coalition used Key Club manpower to advantage as the 52 members exchanged lazy Saturday mornings for hard work at the Swan Lake trash collection center on Recycling Days.

The Drug Abuse Council called upon several members to serve on committees dealing with the misuse of drugs and its effects on youth. Key Clubbers also offered a helping hand to the Sumter Jaycees by selling tickets to the Jaycees Air Show, held at the Sumter Airport.

Demonstrating their spirit of charity, members collected about 60 cans of food and a turkey for distribution by the Salvation Army at Christmas. They also gathered magazines for the Community Nursing Home.

Throughout the year, the Key Club sponsored parties for members and their dates, and attended several district rallies. The SHS Key Club was the only club to sport a female sponsor, Miss Diedre Tufflemire.

Concerned Y-Teens Make Welfare of Others 1st Priority

"Attention! All students interested in the promotion of racial harmony and up-to-date changes in both school and community affairs, contact your nearest Y-Teens Club."

This notice was not official, but its message became clear to all Y-Teen members as they kindled worthwhile projects throughout the school and community.

The community-oriented approach involved members in tutoring children at Savage-Glover and participated in the Big-Sister—Little-Sister YWCA Program. The United Way of Sumter, Mutual World Service Fund, and Cancer Fund received donations from Y-Teen candy sales and windshield washes.

With a contemporary outlook on the "now" woman's role in society, Y-Teens attended the National Organization of Women gathering in Washington, D. C.

Ecology Club Encourages Students to "Pitch In"

When bulldozers moved in to widen Council Street, Ecology Club members took immediate action to transplant two doomed trees standing in the way of progress.

Keeping the Sophomore campus clean was another service undertaken by the club. Trash cans were placed at convenient locations to remind students to "Pitch In".

Miss Cathcart, a student teacher at SHS, led a group discussion on job opportunities in the field of psychology one Monday afternoon. The club also invited Mrs. Johnson, Executive Director of Wateree Community Action, to speak on the WCA program and projects. Members assisted in selling invitations to the Ben Swinton dance held December 15.

Planning a party for the children in the Head Start program and conducting sensitivity sessions were two projects initiated by the newly organized Psychology Club.

Marvelettes Execute Precision Routine Before Football Fans

Left! Right! Left! Right! About face! These drilling cadences could be heard throughout the fall and early winter months as the marching Marvelettes spent endless afternoons in the faculty parking lot responding to the chants of captain, Mary Heriot.

The girls' counterpart to the boys' ROTC drill team designed and made their blue and gold uniforms and rehearsed their marching routine over and over again in preparation for the performance during half-time of the last football game of the season.

Marvelette activity did not end on the football field, however. The enthusiastic squad also made their presence known in the "Cockpit," garbed in school colors and carrying pom-poms, eager to cheer the basketball players on to victory.

Civic Involvement Keys ROTC Activities

ROTC cadets joined in the national campaign to publicize the "prisoner of war" issue by selling POW-MIA bracelets up-and-down Main Street.

One Saturday morning before Christmas, corpsmen took a group of underprivileged children on a shopping tour to select gifts for their family and friends. The kids thoroughly enjoyed themselves and the cadets found it rewarding.

(1) Selecting a Christmas gift is a difficult task for the young shopper, but Charlie Harris and Leroy Gallashaw offer helpful suggestions. (2) Color Guard members, Bobby Harrison, Mabry Parker, James Peebles, and Don Bowman raise the flag before football games.

(3) ANGEL FLIGHT — Teresa Williams, Jeannie Gardner, Gloria Brown, Joanne Stuckey, Marta Thompson, Sheila Parham, Cindy Taylor, Gay Cook, M/Sgt. Tracey.

Football Fans Like Change In Ushers

In September Sumter High football fans were pleasantly surprised to find that Angel Flight members had replaced ROTC cadets as ushers at Memorial Stadium.

Wing Commander Teresa Williams worked closely with advisers Mrs. Colquette and Sgt. Tracey in planning activities for Angel Flight. The members served as hostesses for all official ROTC functions.

Early in the year ROTC cadets and Angel Flight members began making plans for the Cadet Ball. As the April date approached, they worked feverishly finalizing and executing their plans. All of the exhausting work proved worthwhile and satisfying.

Assistants Keep Administration Running Smoothly

Volunteering their free time, guidance and office assistants contributed to the efficiency of the main office and took a burden off the administration by attending to the small, but necessary jobs that cropped up daily. Filing records, delivering deluges of messages, typing, and answering the constantly ringing telephones were only a fraction of the duties performed by the assistants.

Bookstore workers came to the rescue of students short on pens, pencils, paper, and other school supplies. They also aided their classmates in choosing paperback books for both required and pleasure reading. Under the management of Student Council vice-president, Don Mazursky, the bookstore offered Gamecock sweat-shirts, T-shirts, notebooks, and charms, as well as school essentials and books.

School Chauffeurs Transport Nearly 3400 Students

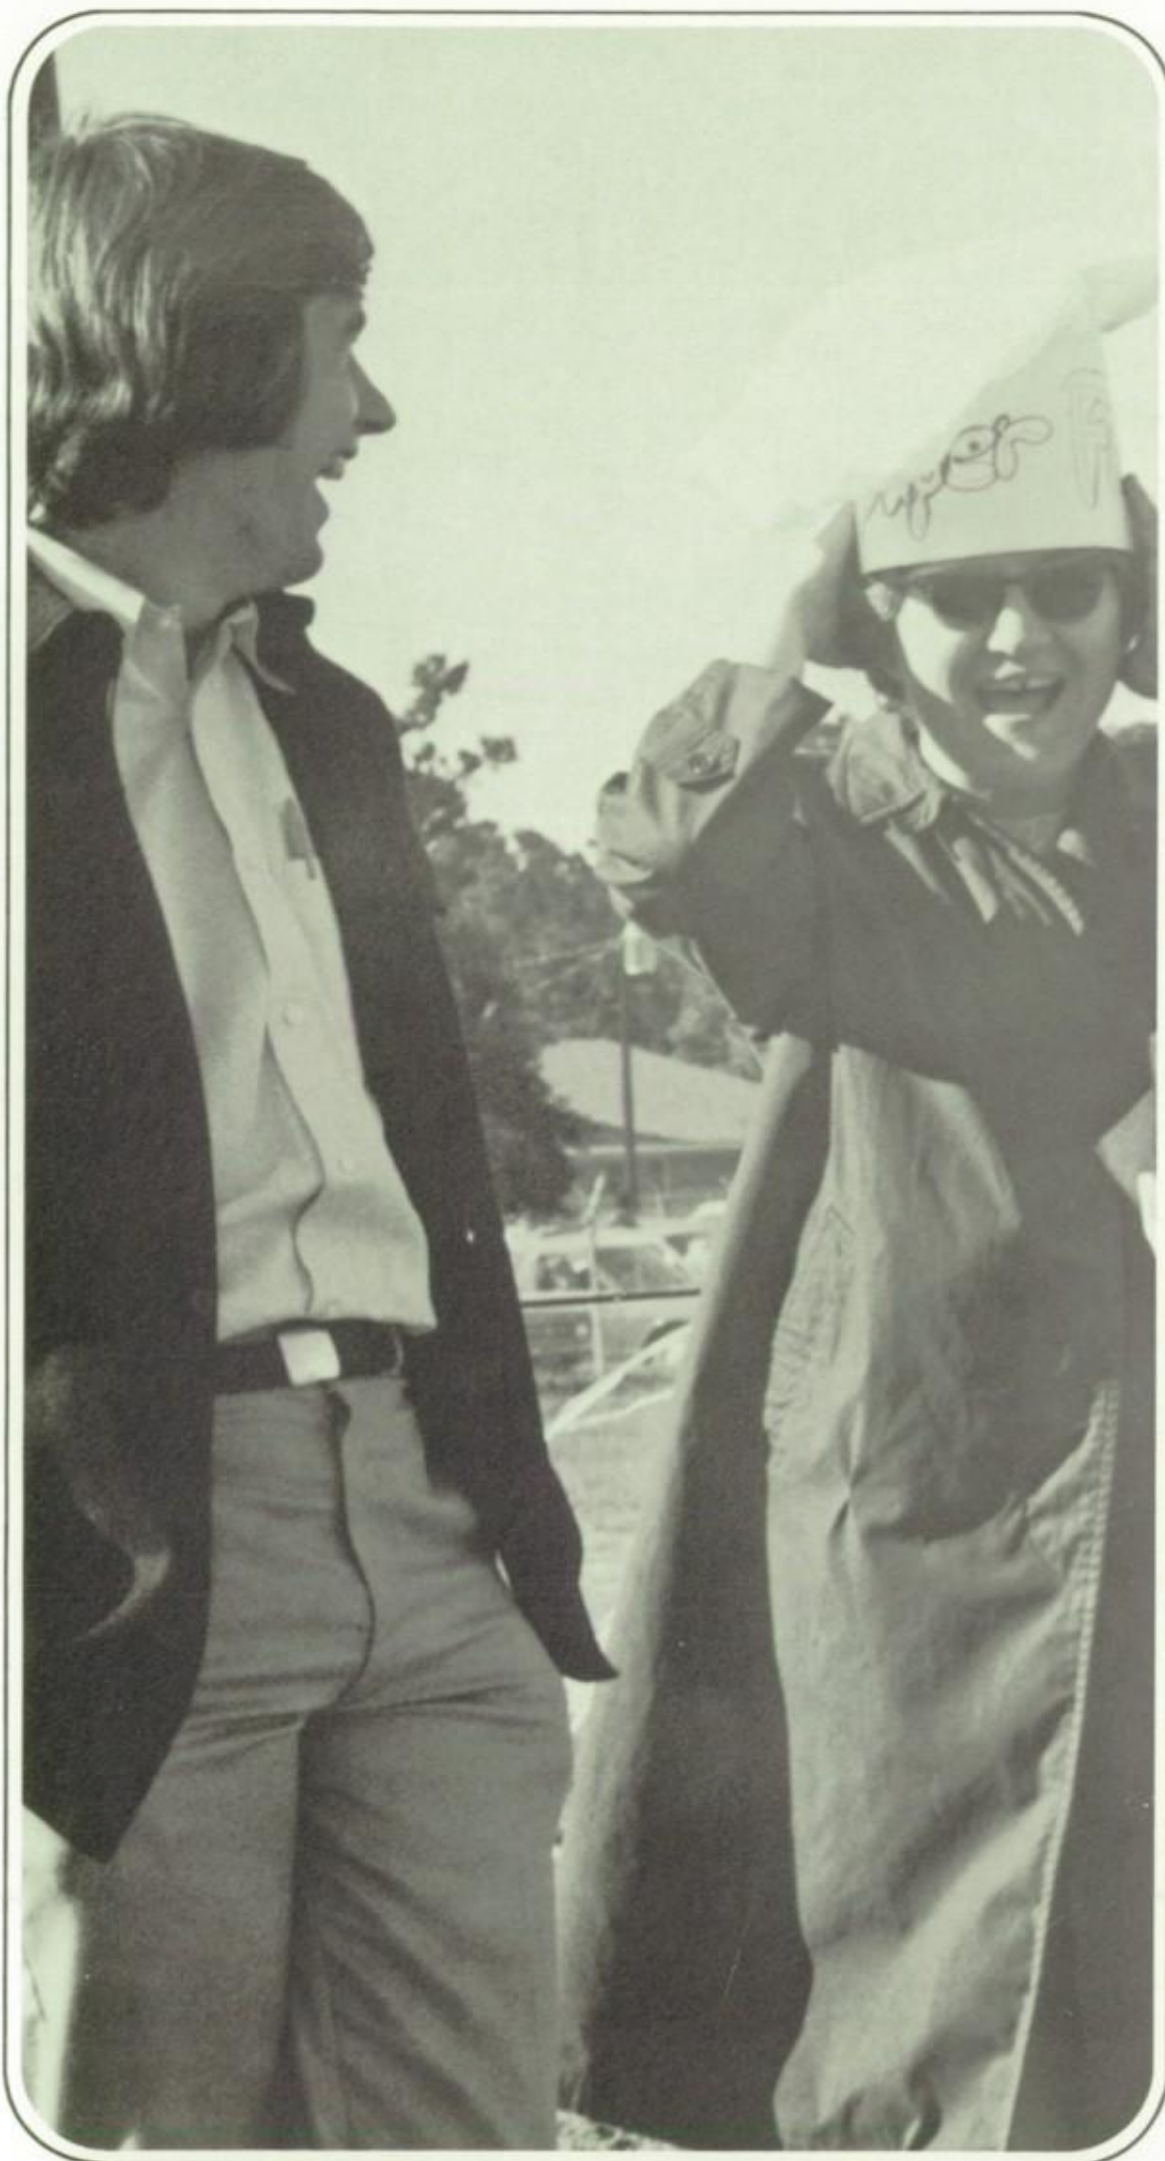

Through thick fog, driving rain, and bright sunshine, 38 faithful school buses made their way throughout District 17 collecting and distributing approximately 3400 elementary and secondary school students.

Due to lengthy bus routes, several "school chauffeurs" had to rise at dawn to start bus engines in order to convey students to school before the tardy bell rang. Quitting time for many of the drivers wasn't until late afternoon, after all the riders had been delivered to their designated stops and the bus was parked at the end of its route.

The 52 bus drivers, on whose trustworthy performance the entire school system depended, prided themselves in having no serious traffic accidents or mishaps, even when driving under icy road conditions.

Seniors

Future dreams and past reflections combined to shape the thoughts of the class of '73. The final year passed slowly for some and swiftly for others as activities mounted.

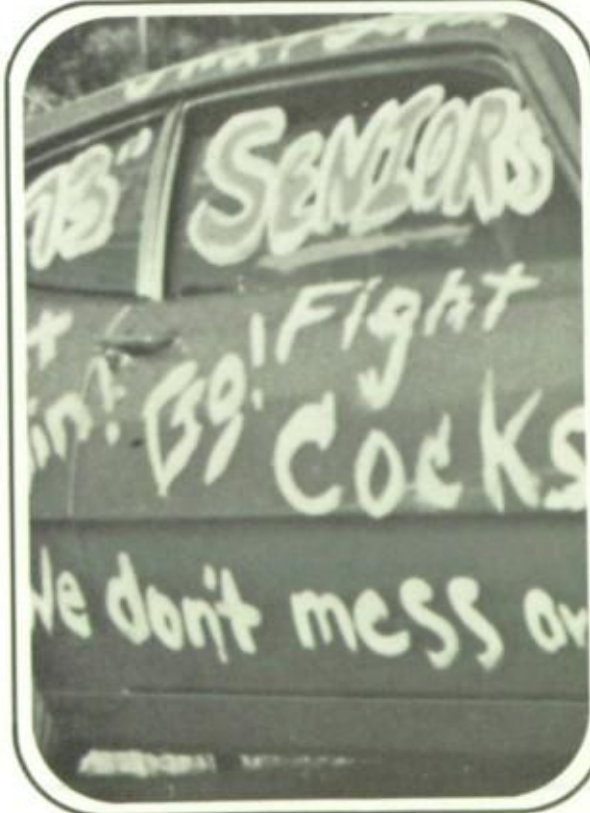

With support and assistance from Senior advisor, Miss Betty Kennedy, seniors attempted to match a booming magazine sale kick-off and a $20,000 goal. After a three week campaign, complicated by competition from surrounding schools, the senior class raised a disappointing $14,000.

Cloaked in the spirited mood of Gamecock Week, Jennie Gardner was crowned Miss Gamecock. Dianne Walters shared the spotlight as Senior Beauty.

Moods changed quickly as many seniors faced college entrance exams. Tensions ran high as anticipated scores poured into the Guidance Office.

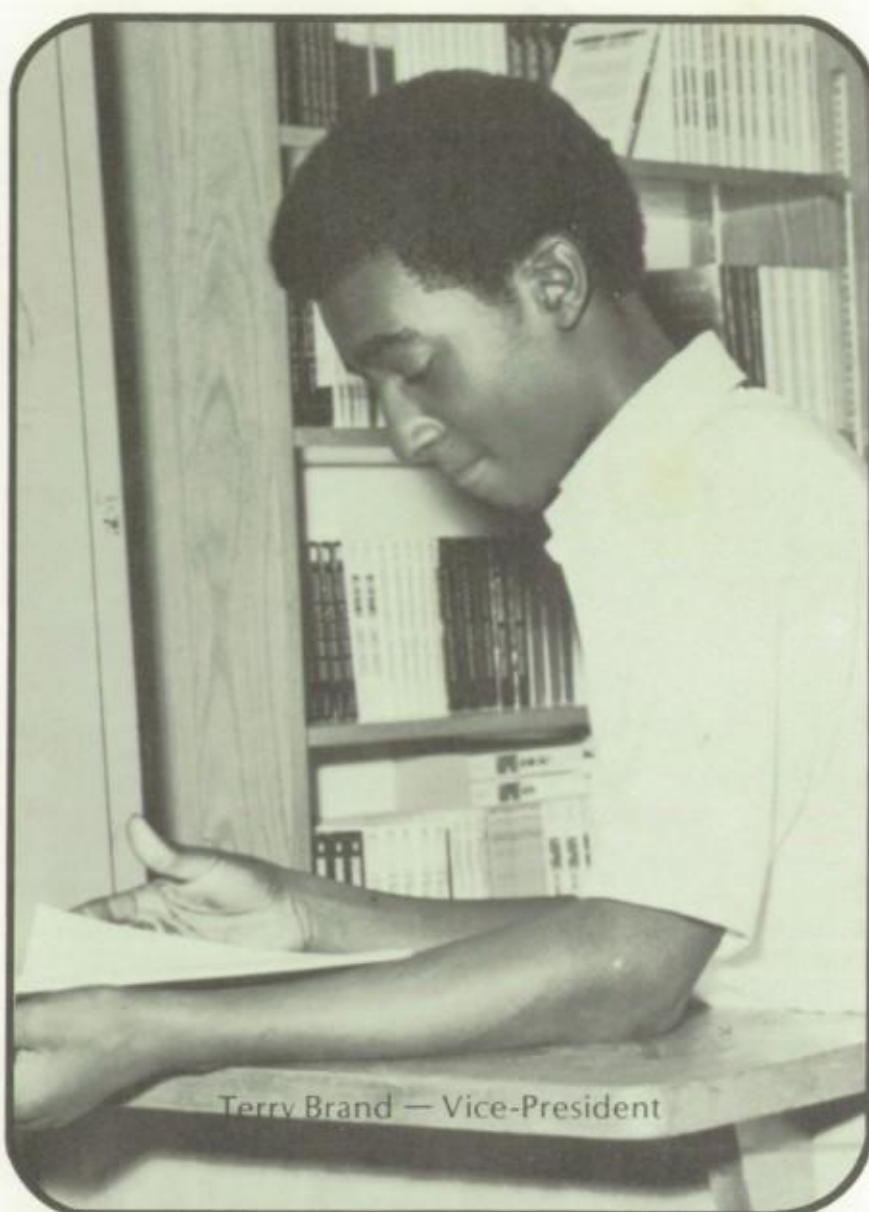

Flashing superiority over underclassmen, hungry seniors grabbed their two-minute head start to the local hamburger stands after receiving off-campus lunch privileges second semester.

As the days grew longer and much warmer, the attention of seniors was drawn to thoughts much more important than hamburgers — their graduation.

Juniors

After registration on August 28, the class of '74 eagerly attacked the job of adjusting to their "new" school. However, it wasn't long until they realized that the privileges they received as sophomores at Council Street Campus were certainly hard to come by!

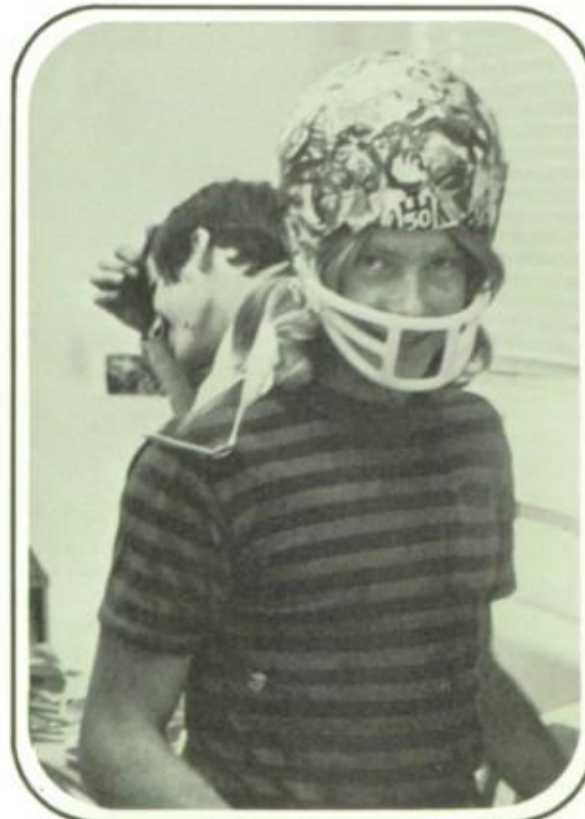

Juniors made their mark as spirit leaders early by snatching a first place win in float competition during Gamecock Week.

Michelle Shaw was elected by her classmates to represent the class of '74 as Junior Beauty.

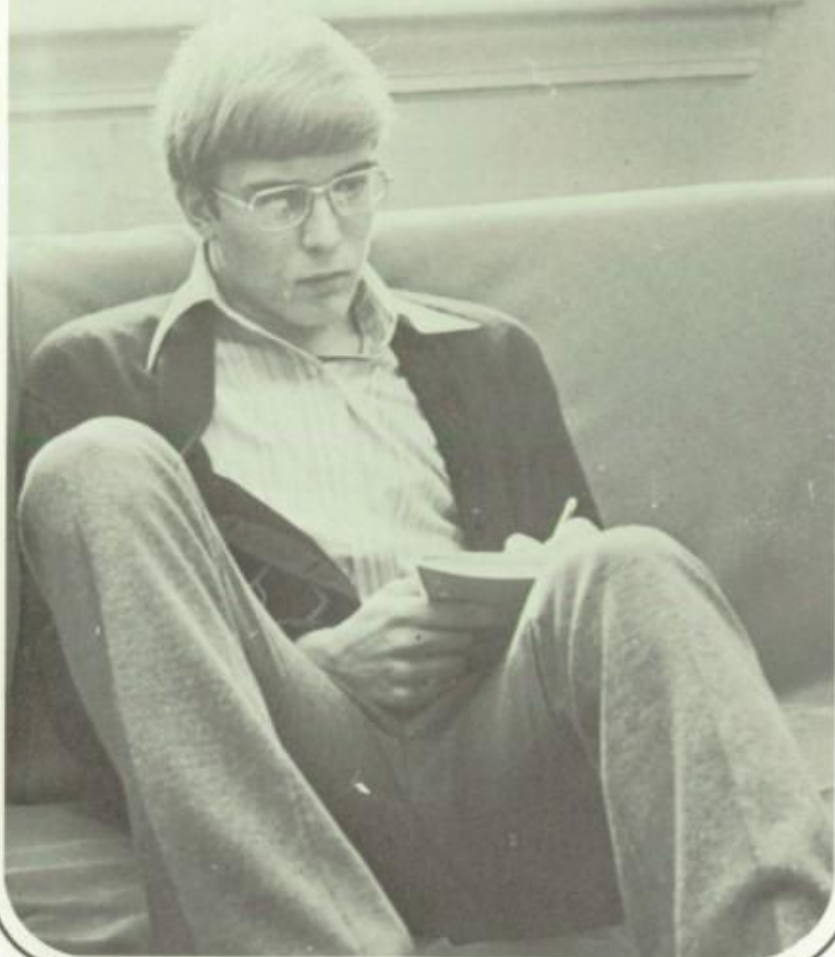

Shortly following the fall festivities, many juniors were sobered by the PSAT. These tests induced vague thoughts of college decisions in the minds of many juniors.

Juniors returned from Christmas holidays to face the responsibility of producing the annual Jr.-Sr. Prom held in early spring.

Finally class rings arrived, symbolizing the close of their junior year and the step up as the senior class for 1974.

Sophomores

Confusion and bewilderment were eventually replaced by enthusiasm and determination as sophomores faced their first year of high school life. Communication difficulties with upperclassmen were foreseen due to separate campuses, but Gamecock Week made juniors and seniors sit up and take notice of the Class of '75 as they triumphed in pep competition for the second consecutive year. Beverly Hobbs was selected to represent her class in "Miss Gamecock's Court".

Sophomores eagerly assumed an active role in all school events, especially sports. No one questioned the skill and agility of sophomore athletes when both junior varsity teams emerged with championship records.

The end of spring break brought with it thoughts of the Sophomore Ball, and sophomores could talk of nothing but decorations, gowns, tuxedos, and bands until it was all over and only memories were left.

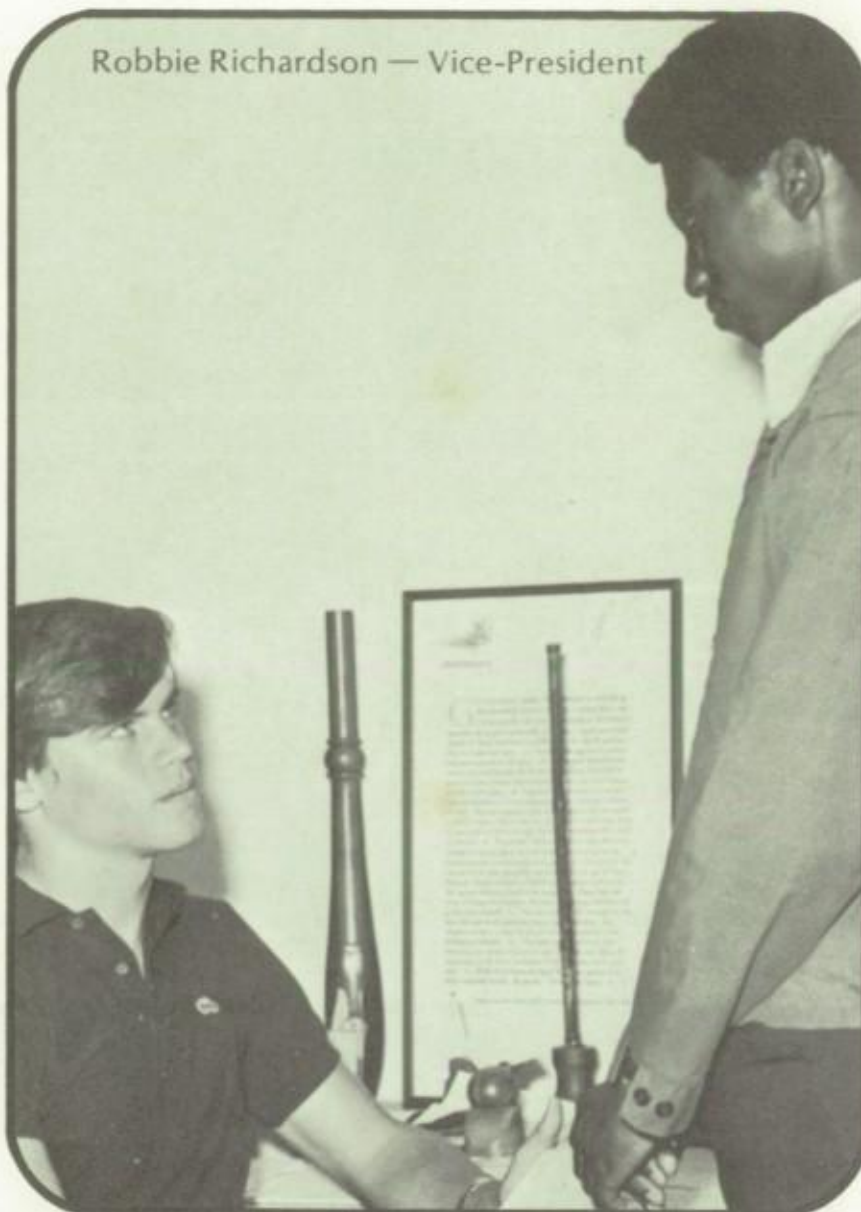

As final exams and summer vacation neared, the Class of '75 looked back on their year at Council Street with regrets, but envisioned the year ahead as juniors at the Haynsworth Street Campus.

*Discover New Worlds
Through Literature
at Baxter's*

For the lighter side of literature, BAXTER'S BOOKSTORE, W. Liberty Street at Alice Drive, offers whimsical greeting cards, children's books, gourmet cookbooks, and best-selling novels in both paperback and hardback editions. BAXTER'S stocks the indispensable aid for interpreting literature, "Cliff's Notes", as well as a variety of dictionaries, almanacs, and studyguides for the student in a jam. Frank Hu finds that in addition to their large collection of Oriental literature, they also feature beautiful Bibles, stationery, and novelty gifts. Anyway you read it, BAXTER'S BOOKSTORE opens up a whole new world of interest.

*The door closes
and you depart.
Carry with you
your myriad moods
and collage of emotions.*
